State To Build Superroad From Cincinnati to Conneaut

Start Slated On Freeway By Summer

Road Will Be Major Part of 650 Million Road Building Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state will begin construction of a superhighway from Cincinnati to Conneaut in northeastern Ohio this summer.

That was disclosed today by Ohio's Highway Chief, Charles M. Noble, at a press conference that followed disclosure by Gov. C. William O'Neill Ohio will spend 650 million dollars or more on highways in the next two years.

Noble said consulting engineers will have their first construction plans ready, between May 15 and May 31. Contracts for actual work can be awarded two months later, Noble said.

The route originally was to have been built as a toll road, but that plan was rejected. Then the Ohio Department of Highways decided to build it as a freeway.

Million a Mile

Noble said the big road will cost one million dollars a mile for construction, plus the engineering and right-of-way. The Columbus-Cleveland leg will be 104 miles long.

In the next two years Ohio will spend more than twice as much on roads as it did in any previous two years, the governor said. And he said the 650 million dollar figure was "very conservative."

Most of the money will come from the state's share of federal interstate highway money, as well as from a big road bond issue passed several years ago.

O'Neill conferred today with legislative leaders on ways to expedite the highway program. Legislation is pending to authorize employment of outside help to buy right-of-way land quickly.

Tuesday night legislative leaders and chairmen of various legislative committees will confer with the governor.

Won't Neglect Others

The big road program will emphasize building highways to connect major population areas—but other roads will not be neglected, the governor said.

In a Sunday television appearance, the governor said that not only will there be work on what would have been the north-south turnpike, but also on roads from Youngstown to Akron, Akron to Canton and from Wheeling, W. Va. across Ohio, passing near Zanesville, Columbus, Springfield and Dayton.

He said this is the first time Ohio ever has announced an overall road-building program.

Noble also announced makeup of the "task force" and consulting engineers who will be charged with constructing the Cincinnati-Conneaut road. Ralph J. Lehman, former chief engineer of the Ohio Turnpike, was named earlier to head the "task force" made up of 30 persons, including 20 engineers.

Hold Key Position

Named to key positions at salaries ranging from $9,500 a year to $10,500 were:

Robert Burket of Columbus, engineer in charge of location and design. He formerly was with the turnpike.

John Buress, Troy, engineer in charge of the right-of-way section, with the highway department for 10 years.

Robert Meyer, special projects

SEWER CONSTRUCTION STARTS. Excavation of a trench for the Forest Lawn Blvd. sanitary relief sewer was started today by the Tiffin Excavating Contractors, Inc. Shown here operating the "back-hoe" power shovel is Jerome Sendelback. Checking the hole while waiting for his truck to be filled is Joseph Sendelback. The relief sewer is one of three sewer segments to be constructed on Forest Lawn Blvd. and Indiana Ave. at a total cost of $499,000. It extends from Indiana Ave. north to E. Center St. The other two segments are trunk sewers on Indiana Ave. from just west of Forest St. to Forest Lawn Blvd. and on Forest Lawn Blvd. from Indiana Ave. south to Mt. Vernon Ave. Construction is slated to start on the trunk sewers sometime this week or early next week. All are to be completed by Sept. 8.

Suez Canal Clearing in Final Stage

Sunken Tug Raised; Dag Set To Wind Up His Mission in Cairo

CAIRO (AP)—A U.N. salvage team today raised the sunken tug Edgar Bonnet, the last obstacle to passage of 10,000-ton ships through the Suez Canal.

The 841-ton tug was to be towed away during the next several days but there was no official word yet when Egypt will open the 103-mile waterway to 10,000-ton ships, about 75 per cent of the canal's normal traffic before it was blocked during the invasion last fall.

The 1,461-ton Egyptian frigate Abukir still partially blocks the southern entrance to the canal, but the 10,000 tonners can skirt this obstacle. U.N. officials have said the Abukir should be cleared by April 10 and that the waterway will then be open to all ships that formerly used it.

Gaza Issue Deadlocked

The Egyptian authorities announced today the canal is now open to ships of 4,000 tons. Previously, nothing larger than 2,500 tons could move through. Already a steady trickle of small ships is going through the waterway, paying tolls to Egypt's nationalized Suez Canal authority.

U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's mission to Cairo meanwhile neared its end amid indications Egypt would make some concessions on operation of the canal. But the outlook on the disputed Gaza Strip remained dark.

The Egyptian Middle East News Agency said Hammarskjold and President Nasser had reached an understanding on the future of the canal. A spokesman for the secretary general warned that the report should be "treated with caution." He said the U.N. official was in no position to make any formal agreement with Egypt since he was only the "bearer of good offices" and not a party to the canal dispute.

Nasser's Position

At the same time, informed Arab sources said Egypt was unwilling to sign any pact keeping the U.N. Emergency Force on the demarcation line unless Israel agrees to stationing of UNEF troops on her side of the frontier. Egypt is also demanding that Israel quit the El Auja demilitarized zone, between the Egyptian Sinai Desert and Israel's Negeb, as provided in the 1949 armistice.

Israel is expected to refuse both Egyptian conditions.

Diplomatic sources believe Nasser may have convinced Hammarskjold Egypt's still secret plan for operating the canal is consistent with the six principles endorsed by the U.N. Security Council last October.

These principles include unrestricted transit through the canal for ships of all nations, respect for Egypt's sovereignty, insulation of the canal from national politics, agreement between Egypt and canal users on tolls and charges, a fair portion of revenue for canal development and arbitration of disputes.

TRAIN AND TRUCK COLLIDE. A Marion man escaped injury at 1 p.m. today when the Commercial Motor Freight Co. truck he was driving and a westbound Erie Railroad passenger train collided at an alley crossing just west of N. State St. He was Kenneth Owens, 25, of 632 Wood St. He was driving north in the alley and said he neither saw nor heard the train coming until too late to avoid the accident. Engineer of the train was Robert Donley of near Marion and the conductor was W. H. Hanley, also of near Marion. They estimated the train speed at about four miles an hour. Downtown crossings were partially blocked about 35 minutes until the truck could be pulled clear of the locomotive.

Storm Blasts Areas From New Mexico Northeast Into Iowa

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The worst spring blizzard in 30 years continued to rage in the Midwest today, paralyzing transportation and crippling communications in many sections of eight states.

One major train, carrying 400 passengers, and an estimated 7,500 highway travelers were reported stranded but none were believed in danger.

Four deaths were attributed to the storm.

Streamliner Snowbound

The train was the Union Pacific's City of St. Louis, westbound from St. Louis to Los Angeles. It was mired in drifts ranging up to 18 feet near Winona, Kan., about 50 miles from the Colorado line. Snowplows were expected to reach it about noon today.

Another train, the Rock Island's eastbound Golden State Limited, carrying 92 passengers, was reached by rescue parties early today and all aboard taken to Meade and Plains, Kan., since Sunday. Six coaches of the train were reported covered completely by snow.

Moving Toward Illinois

The Weather Bureau at Kansas City reported the storm was causing high winds and heavy snows this morning in northern Missouri and southern Iowa as it moved toward Illinois and Indiana. Snow also was still falling in parts of Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska. Conditions had eased somewhat

Freezing Rain Hits As Mercury Falls

A freezing rain plagued Marion and the area this morning as temperatures hovered below the 32-degree mark.

The rain began about 9 o'clock and continued throughout the morning with sleet occurring at intervals. The rain froze on sidewalks and cars as it fell.

Snow, from four to eight inches deep, is expected in the extreme northwest part of Ohio today and tonight, according to the weather forecasters. Snow began falling in the northern part of the state this morning, The Associated Press reported.

Sunday the mercury climbed to 49 and dropped to a low of 28 last night. By about 11 o'clock this morning, the temperature had gone up only three degrees and stood at 31, according to local weather observers. A year ago, the high for the day was 40 and the low 19.

Blasts Opponents

Strong Opens Bid For Mayor's Post

Wendell H. (Mike) Strong of 869 Congress St. opened his campaign for the Republican nomination as mayor in a speech Saturday night in which he criticized the present and immediate past city administrations.

Speaking to the Roosevelt Lodge 1281, International Association of Machinists, in the Central Labor Union Hall, he declared:

"Our municipal leadership for the last eight years seems to me to be suffering from chronic trouble with the letter 'D.' Development from a civic standpoint is hampered by delay, discussion unrelated to the subject, deals, double talk, doubt, and desire for personal or small group interests."

MR. STRONG charged that present and past administrations have not taken the people into their confidence.

"We have no definite or complete program. We are told one thing one week, something different the next week. How can we expect to solve any problem without a positive approach, wise counsel, definite knowledge of the facts, cooperation with state and county government and City Council? All of the citizens of Marion are entitled to this and we shall settle for nothing less," he declared.

Mr. Strong's opponent in the Republican primary is Harold F. Robinson, who served as mayor for three terms before being defeated by Mayor Gale D. Ireland two years ago. Mayor Ireland is unopposed for the Democratic nomination at the primary this year.

MR. STRONG, WHO hopes to defeat both of these men in a march to the Marion mayoralty, addressed these questions to his opposition:

"What became of all the material, and I mean the entire building, known as the Hospital Annex? Was this material used in part to construct any houses locally or a cottage at Lake Erie? Did the city treasury receive any funds for any part or parcel of this material? Have conditions changed up to the present time?"

Mr. Strong said today he was

West Europe Trade, Atomic Pacts Signed

ROME (AP) — Six statesmen of Western Europe bind their nations today to a common market to knock down customs barriers from the North Sea to the Adriatic.

Treaties providing for the common market and its allied "Euratom" atomic pool plan will be signed in the Campidoglio, Rome's ancient city hall, by West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The two pacts are probably the greatest stride yet toward European unification.

Parliaments of the six countries will have to ratify the pacts. Even enthusiastic supporters estimate it will take 12 to 17 years to readjust national economies so that the goods can flow unhindered.

The plan also calls for a unified tariff system on imports from outside the six-nation area.

Under the common market treaty the 160 million people of the six countries will form an economic union, gradually eliminating customs barriers and trade quotas.

Euratom is a separate pact to set up a supranational authority to pool resources for the development and exploitation of atomic energy for peaceful uses.

Cypriots Demonstrate

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Thousands of Greek Cypriots shouted demands for union with Greece and return of Archbishop Makarios from exile in demonstrations today marking Greece's independence day holiday. Minor clashes flared between police and young Greek Cypriots following a thanksgiving service in Nicosia Cathedral.

Gambler Held As Suspect in Ohio Murder

Test on Lie Detector Scheduled; Woman Identified by Friends

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A self-styled gambler faces lie detector tests today in the strangulation of a pretty divorcee who officials believe may have been murdered in St. Louis, brought 416 miles and dumped in a creek near here.

Jackie Ray Lawson, 27, described as a "cool and cocky egotist," will be questioned further about his relations with 29-year-old Mrs. Credia M. Mallady, whose body remained nameless here a week before relatives identified her Saturday.

Faces More Questioning

Lawson, who admits living with the dark-haired woman in St. Louis but says he has not seen her since he left there Feb. 27, was arrested and jailed almost immediately after the identification was considered definite. He was questioned most of Sunday.

Sheriff Ralph J. Paul said Lawson will be taken to the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Identification at London for the tests.

Paul said Mrs. Mallady has never been placed in Columbus in his investigation. Her body, with a plastic clothesline twisted around her neck, wrapped in a bedspread and stuffed in a sack, was found March 16 in nearby Darby Creek by a group of youths fly fishing. Hundreds of persons examined the body at Franklin County Morgue before relatives identified her.

Body Identified

Mrs. Mallady was identified by her former husband, James Mallady, who flew here from St. Louis; her father, Charles Mullins of Logan, W. Va.; her cousin, Mrs. Eva Turner, of Cleveland, and her brother-in-law, Green Cox of St. Louis, who was first to arrive here to examine the body.

President Back From Talks

New Plans Forged By Ike, Macmillan

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (AP) —President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan today were reported to have spelled out secret policy directives on key world issues in Europe, the Middle East and Asia aimed at pinning down the revitalized British-American partnership.

After the windup of the Big Two's four-day meeting, informants said a number of solid written understandings lay hidden behind the generalities of their joint 800-word communique.

Issue 11-Point Statement

In their 11-point statement, Eisenhower and Macmillan Sunday announced the United States will supply "certain guided missiles" to help hard-up Britain streamline its defenses in the atomic age.

They also offered to swap limited observer facilities with Russia at future nuclear weapon tests — tests which they promised to restrain to lessen the risks of causing genetic damage as a result of radioactive fall-out.

Eisenhower also pledged U.S. cooperation with the military committee of the Baghdad Pact.

Eisenhower and Macmillan promised to support U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold's quest for a settlement of the disputes with Egypt over the Gaza Strip, the Gulf of Aqaba and the Suez Canal.

'Great Success'

Macmillan told a news conference the talks had been a "great success" because "we've reached a number of conclusions on some large issues. We've tidied up a lot of points, and we've set in motion methods of better cooperation on questions still unresolved."

1. Eisenhower and Macmillan signed understandings on ways of handling jointly certain international problems. These presumably include American readiness to give or lend-lease missiles to Britain, American willingness to join in easing Allied bars on nonstrategic trade with Red China and the formulation of an international convention to safeguard freedom of oil pipelines.

Also reported included are plans for joint action in case of any sudden worsening of the Middle East situation — for instance, if the wobbly state of Jordan collapses or if new fighting flares between Israel and the Arabs.

2 The two statesmen agreed to drop all thought of short-term pressures to force Egypt into a settlement of current Middle East-ern disputes. Simultaneously, they undertook to act independently outside the United Nations if long-term measures should be needed to isolate an uncooperative Egypt. And they cleared their ideas about promoting European unity and encouraging African political and economic development.

3. The two decided to order their governments to resume cooperation at all levels, to pool military and political information, and to dovetail diplomatic planning.

Will Get $270,000 Question

Beck To Attend Hearing Tuesday, Attorney Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—An attorney for Dave Beck said today the Teamsters Union president will "without question or qualification" show up for a hearing Tuesday by investigating senators who have a $270,000 question to throw at him.

Beck's attorney, former Sen. James H. Duff, told newsmen: "Any report that he is not coming is just plain bunk."

The senators want to ask Beck about his turning over $270,000 to the union, which recorded it as repayment of loans. So far as the senators have been able to determine there was no record of the money having been lent to Beck.

No Evidence of Loan

Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee said, "We know that Beck took from union treasuries some $270,000. There is no evidence of a loan nor of a gift."

McClellan said "that's as far as I could go" in characterizing the transaction pending Beck's own testimony about it.

Beck's whereabouts of the moment were something of a mystery. He canceled Sunday night an airline reservation he had made for a flight from Seattle, his home, to Washington today.

Duff, a former Republican senator from Pennsylvania, was asked whether Beck might already have slipped into the city unannounced.

Whereabout Secret

"I won't discuss that," he replied.

Duff also was asked whether there was any chance to get in touch with Beck, wherever he may be.

"No," Duff said, "there isn't."

Beck has publicly acknowledged getting large sums from

Early Return of Pledge Cards for Pool Is Urged

Marion city officials today gave their support to the campaign for a community swimming pool and urged the return of all pledge cards before the April 1 deadline.

Latest tabulations show that only 679 pledge cards out of 17,000 have been returned. A total of $12,417 has been pledged for construction of the pool, campaign officials reported.

NOTING THAT THIS is far short of the $173,000 needed and that the deadline is only one week away, Mayor Gale D. Ireland and Council President Don Quaintance, speaking on behalf of council, asked that all who have received the cards return them immediately.

The most recent tabulation, completed Sunday, shows that the average pledge now is $18.29 compared with $23.49 on pledges returned up to March 1.

Of the total pledges, 585 have been returned by persons living in and near Marion and have totaled $11,412. Eighty-four pledges from elsewhere in the county total $1,004.

Three local industries have offered to provide materials and services valued at $20,000 for the pool construction.

In endorsing the project today, Mayor Ireland said the results of the campaign up to now are "disappointing."

"No one seems to oppose the swimming pool project, but the pledges are not being returned," he said.

BOTH HE AND Mr. Quaintance noted that the pledge cards do not specify any certain amount that must be pledged. They do suggest that the amount earned in 10 working hours would be a "fair share" but this is not a demand, the mayor noted.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks

without gag, bloat or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel; so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be remoistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to S-T-R-E-T-C-H STIMULATE it to action; to a normal urge to purge.

And, of all laxatives, only COLONAID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONAID'S great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONAID'S stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONAID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy.

Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONAID neither gags, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

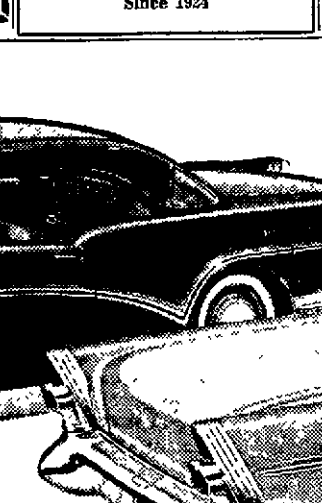
It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONAID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONAID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98c for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2c per tablet.

Stark County Seeks McCoy Case Priority

Conference Is Slated On Murder Charges, Trial at Zanesville

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Russell McCoy, brought here quietly from Zanesville, where he is scheduled to go on trial in two weeks for a double slaying, was to be arraigned here today on two first-degree murder charges in another double slaying.

After the arraignment, according to Muskingum County Common Pleas Judge Clarence J. Crossland, prosecuting attorneys of Muskingum and Stark counties will get together to decide where McCoy will be tried. Judge Crossland was scheduled to try the case against McCoy at Zanesville.



But Stark County Sheriff Harry Grossglaus, in revealing that McCoy had been brought here Friday from the Muskingum County Jail, said Muskingum authorities have recognized Stark County's prior claim to McCoy.

Muskingum County authorities have said McCoy signed a lengthy statement admitting killing Reynold Amodio, 30, owner of the County Line Market, and Paul Cain, 35, a clerk in the store near Uniontown in Stark County during a holdup last Nov. 30. That admission came, they said, after McCoy was questioned about the deaths of his half sister, Mrs. Louise See, and her husband, Lloyd, whose bodies, burned beyond recognition, were found at their cabin near Zanesville.

McCoy was quoted by Muskingum County authorities as admitting that he killed the two and set the cabin on fire last Feb. 9.

McCoy pleaded innocent when arraigned in Zanesville.

While four Stark County deputies stood guard outside "to protect the defendant from any ammosty that may be prevalent in th area," McCoy Saturday night reenacted for Sheriff Grossglass the holdup at the County Line Market. The store is on Ohio 8 near the Star-Summit county line.

McCoy's statement implicated a second man in the holdup-slaying, officials said. That man, Harry Dale Bundy, 38, of Zanesville, has been indicted in the slayings. Bundy says he is innocent.

Homicide Detectives Check Cleveland Case

CLEVELAND (AP)—Traffic patrolmen who found Julius G. Selecky, 56, dead in a car that rolled slowly through a traffic signal here called in homicide detectives today.

Sgt. Edward Troyan of the accident prevention bureau said he called detectives because the car, which came to rest against a telephone pole, was only slightly damaged, while Selecky had two severe bruises on his forehead

Troyan said Selecky had his head on the floor of the car and his feet up.

The city directory lists Selecky as the owner of J's Tackle Shop.

Refusal To Pass Salt Starts Brawl in Prison

FOLSOM, Calif. (AP) — A dinner table dispute over salt is blamed for a vicious fight that ended with two convicts shot and one minus parts of both ears.

Folsom prison authorities said guards shot and wounded both men Sunday when the convicts ignored loud-speaker demands to stop the fight.

The two, both Negroes, were identified as Albert Johnson, 37, a Los Angeles burglar, and Leonard Thompson, 34, a San Francisco burglar.

Thompson, parts of both ears bitten off during the fight, was treated for gun wounds in the leg and forearm and Johnson for an upper leg wound.

The quarrel started when Thompson refused to pass the salt at dinner.

Jesus Loved Them

PILATE'S WIFE

"When he was set down on the judgment seat, his wife sent unto him, saying, Have thou nothing to do with that just man . . ."

—Matthew XXVII 19

Matthew gives us only this brief glimpse into the life of Pilate's wife.

Perhaps her only importance for the writer of the Gospel narrative was that one moment when her life touched that of Jesus and she intervened to save Him because she had "suffered many things this day in a dream because of him."

An apocryphal writer says that her name was Claudia Procula, which suggests that she may have belonged to the noble and influential family of that name in Rome.

The fact that Pilate was able to take her with him to Judea lends support to such a view. There was a Roman law forbidding pro-consuls to take their wives with them when they went to rule in foreign lands

Her reference to Jesus as "that just man" suggests a previous and accurate knowledge of Him Had she heard His message, and was she, too, a secret disciple, like Nicodemus?

Such a thing is not impossible As several historians have pointed out, Roman women of that day were beginning to show a great interest in Eastern faiths, which offered more personal promise and satisfaction than the Latin cults In Rome itself, a great number of patrician women had been initiated into the Mithraic religion.

Scripture does not tell what Pilate's reaction was to his wife's note But there is little doubt that it strengthened his own resolve to release Jesus

The fact that Pilate did not have the personal courage to persist in that resolve, even at the possible cost of losing his own position, was no fault of his wife

The Greek Orthodox Church thought so highly of Claudia, in fact, that she is revered as a saint by members of that denomination.

Massachusetts Replies To Kansas Call for Aid

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass. (AP)—The snowbound community of Collidge Kan., Sunday got help from this seacoast town 2,000 miles away.

Forrest Mason arrived at his oil delivery firm office just in time to hear his local two-way radio crackle a message that Coolidge was buried under 10-to-12-foot drifts of snow and needed help.

Mason contacted police, who got a message over the state police Teletype to Kansas.

Mason said atmospheric conditions apparently made it possible to receive the long-distance message on his local two-way radio.

The home of Gilbert Stuart, noted painter of portraits of George Washington, still stands at Wickford, Rhode Island.

In and About Our Schools

Career study, class plays and athletic banquets continue to hold the center of interest in both city and county schools this week while some 400 Harding and St. Mary senior students are preparing to participate in BIE Day Wednesday. The event is sponsored by the Manufacturer's Council of the local Chamber of Commerce.

—Harding—

Richelle Lurye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lurye of 314 Forest Lawn Blvd. has been selected as Harding's delegate to Buckeye Girls' State, to be held at Capital University in Columbus June 15-23

Janet Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Hunter of 466 Brightwood Dr. has been named alternate. Both girls are Harding juniors.

The event is sponsored by the Ohio Department of the American Legion Auxiliary. Harding's delegate is sent by the Auxiliary to Bird-McGinnis Post 162.

The purpose of the conference is to educate young women to their duties, rights and privileges in American citizenship. Delegates will learn the problems of government with special emphasis upon the contribution women can make to their city, county, state and nation.

The local choice was based on scholarship, service, proven ability in social studies, personality and ability to speak before a group. A faculty committee made the final selection.

Friday's assembly will feature a report by delegates who attended the world affairs conference recently in Cincinnati. Representatives Phil Sykes and Ruth Ann Miller of Harding, as well as Larry Kelly from St. Mary will give a report of their experiences. Wayne Kuhn, representative of the Rotary Club, who accompanied the students to the conference, will make the introductions. Miss Pansy Rauhauser is planning the program.

Harding's basketball banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the lunchroom.

Supt. Robert S. Brown was to address Harding seniors in the lunchroom this morning and county seniors in the auditorium this afternoon concerning the proposed Ohio State University branch here to ascertain interest in the establishment of such a program.

Cecil W. Gabler, assistant to the superintendent, will address all eighth graders concerning the selection of high school courses which would best suit their needs in preparing for a career.

Following this session eighth graders at each school will split up into two groups, those interested in college preparation and those desiring a general education. Mr. Gabler will address the college group in every case and Ray Silver, assistant principal at Harding, will talk to those interested in a general education, with one exception. Joseph G. Whisler, director of pupil personnel, will speak in the general education session at Edison.

Eighth grade students will end the afternoon discussions with an evaluation period in their homerooms.

OPPORTUNITY to investigate six vocational areas will be open to ninth grade pupils following the general session. Each student will choose two of these for the afternoon meetings.

The areas include merchandising, commercial, mechanical, scientific, professional and public service. The various career possibilities under each of the areas will be dealt with in detail during each session to give the student an idea of what he could expect in a specific career of his interest.

Consultants leading discussions for the different areas are the same in most cases. Names of consultants and their fields are: Merchandising, H. F. Flower of the C. G. Murphy Co.; commercial, R. C. Dunlap of the Harding faculty; mechanical, Emil Lisak of the Harding faculty; scientific, Joseph Lyons of the B. F. Goodrich Co.; professional, Charlton Myers, attorney, and public service, Gene White of the Marion County Children's Home.

Exceptions are:

Taft — public service, Mrs. Max Sechrist; merchandising, Don Quaintance; scientific, Miss Bessie Snider.

Edison—commercial, John Dowler of Dowler and McCreight, accountants; mechanical, Eric Williams of the State Department of Education.

Baker — science, Mr. Lyons and Ellis Wilson; professional, Ralph Howard, attorney.

CAREER DAYS at the junior high schools, although similar in outline, have been approached in each case with individuality.

Taft is an outstanding example of this. Here not only guidance but classroom and library work have gone into the preparation for the Career Day program.

Under the supervision of ninth grade English teachers and Max Sechrist, guidance counselor, and Mrs. Mary Bohyer, librarian, students are delving into career possibilities which range anywhere from teaching to ditch diging.

Research reports have been made in English classes based on material on vocations available at the school library.

From the posters on the glass windows of the library to the smallest corner of the room, space is devoted to information on vocations. Information on the six career divisions being considered in Career Day meetings has been set aside at different tables with attractive signs and pertinent books or periodicals on display at each.

A novel approach has been given to oral reports being given in English classes at Taft, too.

Students have chosen unusual professions to investigate. Some of these include raising earthworms, oyster farming, making basketball bats for professionals, snake milking, making toupees and even painting the Golden Gate bridge, a job which requires a crew of 30 men and which takes three years to complete.

The written reports are being bound in a notebook with clippings pertaining to the profession in which the student is most interested.

At Baker and Edison, reports also are being made on career interests. Kuder Preference Tests were given to freshmen at Edison and later individual or group conferences were held to interpret the results. Career displays also can be seen here in the library, as at Baker.

A VISIT OF a representative from the Ohio State employment agency Friday will culminate in a sense the career study of ninth graders at Edison. The employment official will discuss job possibilities and the importance of an interview with a prospective employer, according to Howard Quinn, guidance counselor.

Baker students in the ninth grade will be given California ability tests soon as a follow up of the Kuder tests to determine their ability to back up the interest shown through the Kuder examination, Miss Helen May, guidance counselor at Baker, reports.

Eighth graders at all three schools are concentrating on high school course selection to prepare them for the career in which they feel they will be interested. In their homerooms they already are tentatively filling out schedules for ninth grade courses.

Freshmen, at the same time, are re-evaluating their previous choices and delving further into the possibilities of course selection in preparation for entering Harding.

EXAMINING BOOKLETS on courses of study offered at Harding High School are two Taft Junior High ninth graders, Larry Warwick and Janet Williams (standing). The boys at the table in the foreground are looking up research material concerning a career in preparation for the Career Day program at Taft this week.

Students in Morrow County Plan Trip to Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Thirty students and five teachers from Morrow County High Schools will take a weekend educational field trip to the atomic energy facility at Oak Ridge, Tenn., March 29-31.

While touring the Oak Ridge plant, students will have an opportunity to view an atomic energy reactor, will be able to ask questions of atomic energy specialists and will receive a deeper understanding of the development of atomic energy, its destructive force and its possible peace-time uses.

The students, representing Edison, Johnsville, Iberia, Sparta, Marengo and Chesterville schools, will depart from the Morrow County Courthouse at 5:30 p.m. Friday They will arrive home early Sunday morning

The idea of the educational field trip on a county-wide basis was conceived by Robert Mosteller, executive head and physics teacher at Sparta School.

During the last summer, Mr. Mosteller visited Oak Ridge and saw the possibility of an educational field trip as a means of promoting and encouraging interest in the study of science among Morrow County students.

To prepare them to gain the most from the trip, school executives have planned two-week study periods on atomic energy which are now in progress in each of the schools involved. Eleven educational films on atomic energy are being shown as a part of the study.

Advisers accompanying the students on the trip will be : Mr. Mosteller, Ernest Kathary of Marengo; Earl Johnston of Iberia; George Cone of Chesterville and Richard Siciliano of Johnsville.

Local Educators To Attend Parley

Three Marion educators will attend a special educational conference Thursday in the Student Union at Ohio State University on "Meeting the Challenge of the Gifted."

William A. Howison, principal at Baker Junior High, Charles Clark, director of child study and guidance and Cecil Gabler, assistant to the superintendent will attend from Marion.

The conference is part of the year-long celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the College of Education at Ohio State.

Dr. Ralph Tyler, director of the center for advanced study of behavioral sciences at Stanford University, will deliver the keynote address.

Other conference highlights include a panel interview with Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, discussing "Problems and Issues in the Education of the Gifted." and group sessions designed to apply new ideas to the instructional program.

Harding Play Slated Friday

'Arsenic, Old Lace' Will Be Production

Two charming yet dangerous old ladies provide the interest in the three-act dramatic presentation, "Arsenic and Old Lace," which will be given by the senior class at Harding High School Friday night at 8 p.m. in the auditorium.

The production, which scored a Broadway hit about 10 years ago, will bring to the stage the revelation of an insane family living in the heart of Brooklyn.

With their sordid, and gruesome hobbies, the two old ladies and their brother manage to poison old men who come to their home in search of rooms. Through this action they believe they are doing the world a favor.

As the yarn unwinds, the dilemma of both the elderly women and their subjects becomes more acute and suspenseful. The play manages to end on a happy note, however, in spite of the evil deeds which seem to spell a cruel destiny for the old ladies.

Tickets may be purchased from any class member or at the door Friday night. Admissions are: adults, 75 cents; students, 50 cents. Director of the production is Robert Webb, Harding speech teacher.

Former Marion Teacher Sets Up New Kindergarten

Mrs. Betty McNew, former teacher at George Washington School, now living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., has pioneered there in setting up a private school for small children.

Mrs. McNew established the kindergarten in a new building especially constructed for that purpose. After many months of preparation the school opened with an enrollment of 75 pupils this year.

The curriculum includes reading and number readiness, music, dancing, dramatic play and numerous experiences in working with art materials.

Mr. McNew, an Erie Railroad employe in Marion for many years, helped to plan and supervise the construction of the building. He is now a licensed general contractor in Fort Lauderdale. The McNews moved to Florida two years ago.

Previously a first grade teacher at George Washington, Mrs. McNew is a graduate of Kent State University. She and her husband have one son, Bill, who is 12 years old.

Conference Band Festival Planned

The Buckeye Conference Band Festival will be held at Harding High School Friday, April 5, Homer Huffman, director of the Harding concert band, said today.

Bands from Lorain and Findlay will join Harding for the festival. The groups will practice here during the afternoon for the evening concert at 7:30 p.m.

Each band will present a short program of selections. Then all will join forces in a massed concert to conclude the performance. The event is free to the public.

Book Corner

"The Picture Story of the Middle East" by Susan R. Nevil is the book selected for review this week. It is for boys and girls in the intermediate grades.

The book gives an excellent presentation of the 10 countries of the Middle East. It portrays vividly in words and illustrations the history and customs of these ancient lands.

Although the turbulence of the area is not minimized, the author emphasizes the positive role played by these countries today.

Susan R. Nevil, the author-artist, calls the Middle East her home. This story reflects her intimate knowledge of this region and her warm, understanding interest in the people.

Two end-paper maps appear in color, one representing the ancient Middle East and the other the region as it is today.

This book is available in the Boys and Girls Department of the Marion Carnegie Public Library.

St. Mary Students Will Have Exhibits For Science Event

Science exhibits of St. Mary High School students will be among those shown at the District Science Day at Bowling Green State University April 6.

Approximately 1,500 students from 19 northwest Ohio counties are expected to take part in the district competition. Among these are Wyandot and Crawford County school pupils.

Students from grades 7-12 are eligible to exhibit projects at the District Science Day. These will be rated by judges as superior, excellent, good, and satisfactory.

Those who receive superior ratings may enter their exhibits in the State Science Day which will be held at Bowling Green on Friday, April 19, in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Ohio Academy of Science.

Both district and state science days are sponsored by the Ohio Junior Academy of Science. Among the judges is Max Ross, St. Mary science teacher.

Education Group To Observe 100th Birthday in April

The Marion Education Association will observe the 100th anniversary of the National Education Association with a banquet at the YMCA Tuesday, April 4, at 6:30 p.m.

Invitations for the dinner meeting have been extended to public school teachers, PTA officers and substitute and retired teachers, Miss Philomen Gregg, chairman of the planning committee, indicated today.

The N.E.A., according to Miss Gregg, has seen a century of progress in education. For teachers the organization has promoted an average salary jump in 30 years from $1,197 to $3,530.

As a result of N.E.A. promoted legislation, 80 per cent of teachers work under tenure laws today and all states have a retirement system, Miss Gregg added.

Will Attend Institute

Two Teachers in County Given Grants for Study

Two Marion County teachers have been awarded $600 grants by the National Science Foundation to attend an eight-week Summer Institute at Ohio Wesleyan University.

They are Mrs. Clifton H. Wenig, Meeker instructor, and Robert O. McFarlan, high school principal and instructor at Prospect. The two are among 50 high school teachers of physics and chemistry receiving the awards.

The institute will run from June 17 to Aug. 10. Ohio Wesleyan is one of three universities in the state awarded a summer institute grant.

The foundation grants cover tuition and other fees for the 50 participants, plus $75 a week and an additional $15 per week for each dependent up to four and traveling expenses.

Dr. Howard N. Maxwell, chairman of the Ohio Wesleyan University physics department and director of the institute, said the primary objective is to improve the teaching of physics and chemistry at the secondary level, especially in smaller high schools.

Phases of study will include astronomy, geology, physics and chemistry. Instructors will include members of the Ohio Wesleyan faculty as well as Prof. Leon Smith, chairman of the physics department at Denison University, and Prof. H. E. Wilcox, chairman of the chemistry department at Birmingham-South College.

Approximately 4,500 high school and 250 college teachers will benefit during the summer from teacher training programs such as this, sponsored by the National Science Foundation in 95 colleges and universities throughout the U.S. and its territories. The grants to support the summer institutes total $4,800,000.

Byrd's Estimate Sound

The best known of all budget - cutters, Sen. Byrd of Virginia, says $6½ billion could be lopped off the President's $71.8 billion budget.

Since that outsized sum would have been balanced by anticipated revenue with something to spare, a $6½ billion cut would make tax reduction possible.

It would halt the trend of the federal budget toward ever - higher figures — the automatic upping of the government spending level which adds to the inflation the Eisenhower administration says should be stopped.

It would reassure taxpayers about the responsiveness of the government, a quality in doubt when questions are raised about its money management.

Sen. Byrd's proposed cut from $71.8 billion to $65.3 billion is close to the cut proposed by half a hundred Republican representatives early this month; they suggested $65 billion.

But though no one doubts such a cut would be feasible if it were done, no one is betting that it could be done — and that is where public opinion should be brought to bear. Why can't it be done?

The reason is that Congress has lost control of the budget.

Congressmen who want to reflect public opinion, which is running heavily against too-high taxes to support too much spending, are hogtied by the financial complexity of a government that has grown too big for them to manage.

Under the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, Congress tried to reassert its authority over spending with a joint Senate-House budget committee to consider the executive budget as a whole and put a ceiling on spending. A concurrent resolution of both houses then would confirm the ceiling, and it would be up to the administration to stay under it.

Congress, itself, ruined the idea in 1947 the first time it was tried, by appropriating $6 billion more than its own maximum. The idea was dropped in 1949. In 1950, another idea was tried.

All general appropriation bills were lumped in a single measure. This idea worked. No less than $2 billion was saved, besides weeks of time in legislative haggling. But it worked too well. Lobbyists, bleeding - heart blocs, pressure groups and bureaucrats were dead set against it, and they destroyed it.

In 1952, one more attempt was made to restore congressional control over spending. The Senate tried again to set a budget ceiling, but the House was opposed — and that is why the federal budget is more than budget - cutters who try to do the job piecemeal can handle.

The American people can afford to spend the money if they must. But they cannot afford to tolerate a situation that puts the federal budget at the mercy of bureaucrats, pressure groups, lobbyists and that endless parade of do-gooders who want to do it with somebody else's means. There is where the danger lies.

Shadow of 1926

Every threat of a general strike in Britain revives the specter of the momentous popular reaction of 1926, when a nationwide tieup set the stage for the Trades Disputes and Trades-Union Act of 1927.

Although the general strike lasted only nine days, the law it caused has lasted 30 years without substantial change. Even Labor governments have not dared to tamper with it. Under the law, unions must pay damages suffered by employers in the course of illegal strikes—a principle still not firmly embodied in U.S. law. Sympathy strikes, political strikes and most forms of picketing are outlawed.

These harsh provisions have been retained because Britons have known that their common welfare as a nation of exporters cannot withstand the shock of sudden, arbitrary readjustments in the cost of production. This knowledge never was clearer than it is in 1957, when Britain is struggling desperately to correct an inbalance of exports and imports.

This is not organized labor's fault. But neither is it the fault of employers. It is a fault in the position of British industry relative to the position of other industrial countries — a national problem that cannot be solved by sudden and arbitrary changes in the costs of British enterprise.

Stay of Execution

Ohio's 23-member Board of Education apparently has survived the legislative challenge to its continued existence. Bills to abolish it in favor of a smaller group have been pigeonholed by the Education Committee of the House of Representatives.

But a stay of execution should not be mistaken for a clean-bill of health and a full pardon. The 23-member board must still prove it is not unwieldy as a policy-making agency.

It can be forgiven for its unwieldiness as an administrative body, because it never was intended to perform in the administrative field. That will be the responsibility of the new state director of education, Edward S. Holt of Springfield, when he moves into the job.

As policy-makers, the 23 board members have enough unexplored problems to keep them busy for the next few years.

The 102nd General Assembly is being asked to provide nearly $400 million in state aid for public schools.

When the state spend money on education at that rate, it needs firm policies and efficient administration to protect taxpayers.

Tax Cut Talk Revived

By David Barnett

Chances for Relief by 1958 Seen Improved

WASHINGTON

Tax-cutting talk revived on Capitol Hill last week.

Some of the most responsible House leaders, privately and cautiously, are discussing tax slashes to equal whatever cuts in the budget Congress is able to make.

The thinking: cuts in government are deflationary. Cuts in taxes are inflationary. This is no time to rock the boat. Make the two tendencies balance by cutting taxes to the extent that appropriations are cut.

Don't get your hopes up, though. Even if the plan goes through, the tax cuts would not be voted until June and would not be effective until 1958.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEE on un-American activities is sitting on testimony indicating that the government of a friendly Latin American country is controlled by Communists.

Said one member of the committee: "I wouldn't think of releasing this testimony. The State Department would be on my neck in a minute."

Such a consideration didn't stop the Senate internal security subcommittee, which released some allegations about a Canadian ambassador.

Protests by the State Department and the Canadian government merely tempted the chairman of the Senate group, Sen. James Eastland (D., Miss.) to fight back.

Senator Eastland prepared a long speech telling off the protesters, but he never delivered it. The reason had nothing to do with international diplomacy, however. Sen. Arthur Watkins (R., Utah), a member of the sub-committee, threatened to get into a public row with Eastland if the southerner made the speech.

AS EVERY schoolchild knows, dog is man's best friend.

If research financed by a federal agency pans out, man can be dog's best friend.

The details of this reverse situation were presented to Congress by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases. The institute told about a study being made at the Children's Hospital, Buffalo, N.Y.

The investigator has demonstrated that a "neutralizing substance" against canine distemper virus has been found at a high level in gamma globulin, the common fraction of human blood rich in antibodies.

The antibody turns up in newborn infants, is lost by the sixth month and reappears in between the second and tenth year. It is prevalent in almost every adult.

This may be great for the dogs, but it also indicates that humans have been suffering from a widely prevalent infection that, in most cases, has been entirely inapparent.

IN WALKING across a field, it is prudent to go 'way around the tree with the hornets' nest in it. The hornets probably won't attack you anyway, but why take a chance?

The House judiciary committee is expert in applying that advice.

Latest episode involves a private relief bill for Maj. John P. Ruppert. During 1952 and 1953, Major Ruppert was stationed in Fontainebleau, France, where he signed a lease for his house.

At what he thought was the termination of the lease, Major Ruppert moved out. According to the private relief bill, as originally introduced in Congress, "The lessors obtained a judgment against him in a French court for an additional year's rent and he was compelled, under the Status of Forces agreement, to pay such judgment notwithstanding the finding of the headquarters commandant that the lessors had no legal claim against him."

In short, the private bill was introduced to reimburse the major for the $934 he had been forced to pay the French landlord.

The judiciary committee decided the purpose of the bill was all right. But they did not like that mention of the "Status of Forces" treaty.

THE COMMITTEE once before had dealt uncomfortably with those who argue that such treaties, which force some servicemen to stand trial for some offenses in the courts of the host countries in which they are serving, are a disgrace.

After long and complicated study, the congressmen decided the treaties actually were all right. But this is a difficult decision to get across to those who feel srtongly nationalistic. So, in this private bill, the committee, before sending it to the floor for final approval, changed the wording.

The bill as finally approved drops all references to the Status of Forces treaty and merely explains that Major Ruppert "was not familiar with local habits, customs and legal procedures, and acted upon assurances given by the legal adviser of the military headquarters."

IS PRESIDENT Eisenhower's Atoms-for-Peace proposal part of the U.S. technical assistance program or is it strictly atomic business?

What difference does it make? Plenty, to Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and administrator John B. Hollister, of the International Cooperation Administration.

Hollister wants the program under the ICA as part of the foreign-aid program. Strauss wants the program to stay under the AEC.

The President may have to decide.

DOROTHY McC. LEE once was mayor of Portland, Ore. She was elected on a reform ticket.

Portland is the city that forms the locale for most of the vice and corruption turned up in the Senate hearings on racketeering in labor and management.

Mrs. Lee now is chairman of the Subversive Activities Control Board here in Washington.

What about all this testimony about her home town?

"Well," the former mayor said, "The people of Portland get real indignant from time to time about the vice situation. But only for a while. Then they forget it."

You can say that again, lady.

—:—

THE RECENT anniversary of the shooting by Puerto Ricans of five members of the House of Representatives prompted Rep. Brooks Hays (D., Ark.) to recall some of the humorous aftermaths of the woundings.

Some examples:

A member, running out of the chamber during the firing, was asked: "Where are you going?"

"To get my gun."

"Where is it?"

"At home—in Alabama."

One member said he thought the noise of the shots was the result of somebody firing firecrackers. "Oh, no," said another, "I knew it couldn't be firecrackers—it's against the House rules to shoot firecrackers in the gallery."

The best of the lot was the crack of a newsman who insisted that 123 of the weekly newsletters sent home by congressmen the week after the shooting began: "I was sitting next to Congressman Alvin M. Bentley (R., Mich.), who received the worst wounds of the five—"

Anti-Squiggles

By TRUMAN TWILL

There's been an epidemic of contractions lately in the writing trade. It's serious. Men and women who're smart enough to know better are getting sick about it.

Writing's not like speaking, because speaking's rapid-fire. One's for ears, one's for eyes. When eyes see a squiggle (') where a vowel's supposed to be, they blink. A squiggle's supposed to be saved for places where the possessive case's indicated in writing, unless a speaker's being quoted directly.

What a writer's doing when he uses a squiggle for a vowel's trying to sound easy - going and cracker-barrelish. That's obvious.

But it's no use trying to sound cracker-barrelish when there's no barrel and no crackers. That's as phony as a three-dollar bill, ain't it?

The purpose in writing's to let readers in on the information that's being exposed, which can't be done with squiggles that don't mean what'er's under discussion. Ne'er forget that, squigglers.

And don't e'er forget that a squiggle takes up as much space as what's left out, which's another reason for being stingy with squiggles.

They're no substitute f'r the real thing.

Suppose the Declaration of Independence had been squiggled. . .

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men're created equal that they're endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these're Life, Liberty 'n' the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights governments 'r' instituted among men deriving their just powers from the governed's consent. That whene'er any form of government becomes destructive of these ends it's the right of the people to alter 'r' abolish it etc."

That'd be the way it'd sound if read aloud by a mush-mouth but that's no reason to destroy its dignity when it's written.

The Founding Fathers didn't have inside plumbing and rock 'n' roll, but they had freedom from squiggles, which's more than their besquiggled progeny can say.

Folks've gone nutsy over squigglers and let 'em make a mishmash of what'd be a mighty fine language if they'd play it by ear when folks're listenin' and by eye when they're readin'.

It's the Bre'er Rabbit influence in writin' that's been corruptin' us, and we'd do well to remember that Bre'er's trouble talked with 'is mouth full o' carrots. If he'd been writin' it out, he would've known better'n to use squiggles; he was smarter'n Octavus Roy Cohen.

She Fits Right In

'Satisfaction' Achieved at Bermuda

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

Most of the statement by President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan—on what they agreed to at Bermuda—was a collection of banalities. It sounded more tired than vigorous.

For example: They agreed it's good to have military allies. That's hardly news. They said they will continue support for the reunification of Germany. No one expected otherwise.

Nor, to continue the example, did they have to go to Bermuda to agree, as they said they did, that they: sympathize with the Hungarian people; think Russia is repressive; believe all countries should have liberal trade policies; have a common interest in European unity within the Atlantic community.

BUT THEY SAID not a word on the most important, immediate problem facing them: what they will do, individually or together, if Egyptian President Nasser keeps on kicking up his heels.

All they said — without mentioning his name — was to indicate they hope he will comply with United Nations' resolutions for restoring peace to the Middle East.

They may have reached agreements not put in writing. It's doubtful. For example: Macmillan has favored a strong hand in dealing with Nasser; Eisenhower has preferred handling him through the U.N.

THIS BERMUDA meeting, which ended Saturday, was intended to patch up the American - British split over the British-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt. And maybe it accomplished just that.

But this meeting, judging from the statement issued after it was over, did not look like a warm or hearty get-together. The two men simply said they were "well satisfied with the results of this conference."

Eisenhower and Macmillan did reach positive decisions on three points:

1. The United States will let Britain have American guided missiles. This was a natural step, besides saving Britain money trying to develop similar weapons, since Britain is in the front line of this country's own defense.

THE BRITISH—because of a ban in American law—won't get the atomic warheads to go with the missiles. But warheads will be stocked in Britain. In an emergency — a Russian attack — they would certainly get the warheads.

2. It was agreed the United States and Britain will continue testing nuclear weapons while trying to keep fall-out to a minimum. They invited Russia to watch their tests, if Russia will return the favor by inviting them to watch hers.

This is a gesture toward creating some mutual confidence between the West and Russia—since neither side has trusted the other enough so far to agree on disarmaments — although no secrets would be given away.

3. The United States agreed to take part in the work of the military committee of the Baghdad Pact, a military alliance made up of Britain, Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan. Those five allies must be saying: "It's about time."

FOUR OF THE allies are on Russia's southern border. The alliance is aimed at Russia. But the United States, which inspired the pact in the first place, not only refused to join it but even refused to take part in the military planning.

The reason: The Arab nations objected to the pact and this country wanted to pacify the Arabs. As the statement shows by one omission, Eisenhower still has his eye on the Arabs for he didn't say this country would now join the pact.

The Old Barber Shop

By Frank Tripp

Any male who grew his first crop of whiskers before the safety razor could tell this story — or a better one. I came upon a museum piece the other day; two in fact, a shaving mug and a mustache cup. We'll dwell today upon the shaving mug. The mustache cup is worthy of special treatment.

They had something in common, however, for both had a tonsorial background. The mustache cup kept pop's "handle bars" out of his coffee; the shaving mug had a part in giving him an otherwise velvety face, the skin mom loved to touch.

The old shaving mug once had a place of honor in my town's leading barber shop; which boasted "ten chairs, ten barbers, no waits." It was one of scores of mugs which covered one wall of the community's center of masculine gossip and risque anecdote. It had a pigeonhole niche in an ornate solid walnut cabinet.

It is gold-trimmed and bears the name of its long gone owner, done in gold letters of Old English. Its nearest counterpart today, in shape though only half the size, is the Tom-and-Jerry mug which the convivial lift at Yuletide.

THE OLD shaving mug cabinet was a directory of the town's tops as one scanned the names of the shop's customers emblazoned on their cups. There was keen jealousy about the position given to those cups.

When the holder of a coveted spot got his last shave from the undertaker and the family called to claim his shaving mug, brush, and usually his own private razor, everybody watched to see who would inherit the eyelevel pigeonhole. Such an occasion posed a delicate problem for the master of the shop. He could lose good customers if he didn't have sound reason for picking a successor for the preferred spot.

FEW EXCEPT transients and fuzz - growing youngsters were shaved with lather whipped up in the shop's own mug. I remember how I looked forward to a day when maybe my name might be on one of those cups. It was like getting in the local Who's Who.

That time never came because the safety razor came first. Thereafter, one by one, the shaving mugs gathered dust or were withdrawn to the owner's home shaving kit. Ere long there were plenty of coveted positions for the few who never got to shave themselves. Finally the spacious shaving mug cabinet disappeared.

AS WITH MOST inventions, barbers weren't hurt so much but they became less prominent depositories for the local dirt and current tall stories

More men began to shave themselves daily, once only the practice of "dudes." More perked up their personal appearance, had their pants pressed, got more haircuts, shampoos and bought more tonics and smelly lotions. The ten-cent shave and quarter haircut went the way of nickel beer

Most men who had spent a half-hour midweek and late Saturday night getting shaved and exchanging quips scraped off their own beards and became twice-a-month haircut customers rather than frequent callers at the barber shop.

THAT EVENT had important social repercussions on the community. One of the most vocal civic forums went out of existence Missing it may have helped the service clubs to thrive. They were born soon after, when men lost the contacts which the barber shops had given them.

How different now Manicurists hold your hand while a combination barber and Colonel Sellers tries to sell you the whole shop—when all you wanted was a haircut

Supermarkets and Pills

There is a fight on across the country over whether supermarkets should be permitted to deal in drugstore products. A Jersey court has ruled it okay over a protest by pharmaceutical organization. (We hear the drugstores may retaliate by putting in a line of meats and green vegetables.)

-:-

IMA DODO GOT so confused today that she went to a pharmacy for "a bottle of porkchops" and asked her doctor for a prescription so she could get some blood pills at a meat market.

The supermarkets in many states have been adding medical preparations and supplies to their stock for some time, all items, of course, which do not require any doctor's okay.

But druggists are up in arms and have claimed that it is not only unfair competition to begin with but that it is in the interest of public health and safety that medicine be sold only through apothecary shops.

A customer can be expected to ask the druggist about certain preparations and products, they say but could hardly ask a butcher or green vegetable clerk for opinion and advice on pills and spring tonics.

AS A FREQUENT VISITOR to supermarkets and to the corner druggist (not in the order named) we are neutral in this fight.

The supermarkets are in competent, smart hands and have been branching out in their merchandise for years. Cigarettes, cigars, chewing gum, candy, cosmetics and even magazines have long been handled.

They are progressive and we would not be floored to enter such a market and see a display of bicycles, outboard motors and house paints any day.

WE ANTICIPATE a shopping list from the wife (when she is indisposed some time) which will read "Potatoes, celery, two-piece suit, codfish cakes, one pair of eggs, butter, jam, turkish towels, liniment, kidney pills, cereals four ounces of cabbage, house-slippers, new dog-collar, one loaf of bread, peanut butter, 5 by 8 hall rug, two pounds of socks and three yards of swordfish."

-:-

IT MAY EVEN BE possible in time to go to the grocery for a fishing rod, some lawn furniture and an iron stove. But in the meantime it will seem a little odd to stop between the catsups, soups, hamburger meat and pies to pick up our indigestion tablets. But not much different from pausing at the drugstore soda fountain for a loaf of bread and a quart of milk.

IN AN INTELLIGENCE test "Twenty-One" gets pretty ridiculous asking contestants to name the husbands and wives in comic strips.

Charles Van Doren had something lacking in current jackpot seekers: A certain degree of color and the ability to create suspense. He seemed to struggle with the tough questions so intensely that it kept the TV audience on edge. Vivien Nearing is more placid about it and most of the others fail to give the contests a dramatic quality.

One of the really great columnists of the world, although little known outside religious circles, died the other day. He was the Rev. Father James M. Gillis, priest, author and editor, who for a half century, or nearly so, wrote "Sursum Corda" for a chain of religious newspapers.

"There Shall Be No Night," Robert Sherwood's play, as done on TV, was better than good, but lacked the power of the stage version.

News of Other Years

40 YEARS AGO — A tornado in the area of Indianapolis, Ind., literally swept the dead in its path, as the death toll mounted to more than 50. Between 200 and 400 persons were known to be injured also. Property damage was estimated at nearly $3,000,000.

Fordham University organized an ambulance corps to be offered to the government in case of war. Five of the six officers in the corps were members of the university's medical faculty.

James W. Gerald, ambassador "unattached" to Germany, warned upon his arrival in New York from Germany that the Kremlin was ready to fight the United States, not in Europe, but in America. Germany reportedly counted on the support of Mexico and German-born Americans here in carrying out plans for the destruction of American property, he said.

20 YEARS AGO — Belief that education could solve the political and social problems of America was expressed by Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade and former president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, who spoke before a joint meeting of Marion city and county teachers. Approximately 350 persons attended the banquet meeting held at the Masonic Temple.

Snow, followed by a heavy rain, ushered winter back to Marion. The Midwest experienced in many areas the worst snowstorms of the winter with drifts piled feet deep in spots.

A strike of auto workers at the Chrysler plants in Detroit left 30,000 workers out of employment. The striking number had grown since March 8 when labor and management first clashed on exclusive bargaining rights. Workers were determined to remain away from jobs until their union representatives were given the exclusive right to bargain with mamagement.

10 YEARS AGO—Two sets of twins arrived within four hours of each other at Marion General Hospital. Twin sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Frasure of 470 W. Center St. and a boy and girl to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crissinger of 197 Fies Ave.

Damage estimated at $5,000 was done to a yard crane at the Osgood plant when a 50-gallon fuel tank exploded, blowing a hole in the cab.

Sixty-two mile-an-hour winds hit Marion as winter staged a comeback in a snow and ice storm which tore down power lines and made roads impassible in spots due to drifts Although Marion city schools remained open, many county schools closed.

Orth Convicted For 2nd Time Of Bar Holdup

An Allen County jury returned a verdict of guilty in Lima Friday against Kenneth J. Orth, 26, of Marion, charged with armed robbery in connection with a holdup of a Lima tavern in 1954 that resulted in the fatal shooting of John R. Mooney, 22, of Lima, a patron in the establishment.

The verdict marked the second time Orth had been found guilty of the charge. A previous jury returned a similar verdict in November but Orth won a new trial on a claim of "prejudicial error." It was expected that a motion for still a third trial would be filed sometime today.

Orth was acquitted of first degree murder in the fatal shooting of Mooney on July 19, 1956, after two other members of the bandit trio, Duane Packer and William Swearingen, both of Marion, testified for the prosecution. Both Packer and Swearingen are presently serving terms in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Orth faces a possible sentence of 10 to 25 years in the Columbus penitentiary as a result of the verdict. Swearingen is serving a similar term for his part in the crime, while Packer is doing a life sentence for a subsequent kidnaping and attempted robbery of Marion's National City Bank.

Orth and his two confederates were involved in the holdup of the G&G Cafe in Lima the night of Dec. 10, 1954, according to testimony at his trial. During Orth's trial for the murder of the Lima man, both Packer and Swearingen testified that Orth was with them the night of the shooting. Members of Orth's family, together with several neighbors, however, claimed Orth was at his Marion home when the shooting took place.

The fatal shots were fired by a gunman wearing a black hood over his head and Packer told the court that Orth was the man wearing the hood. The only witness to the actual shooting, Kenneth Clemens of Lima, who was playing shuffleboard with Mooney shortly before the latter was shot, could only testify that the man wearing the hood fired the fatal shots. The jury absolved Orth of the shooting by finding him not guilty.

Judge Moran B. Jenkins was on the bench for all three trials. James Blair of Lima was attorney for Orth's defense.

Deadline for Property Tax Payments Nearing

The deadline for filing 1957 personal property tax returns is 4:30 p.m. Saturday, according to Maurice Clements, Marion County auditor. Mr. Clements says his office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. every day this week to accommodate persons filing their returns.

As of now, approximately 2,040 returns have already come in. The total number of returns expected approximates 4,500, the auditor notes. Returns bearing a postmark of March 30 will be regarded as having gotten in under the deadline wire, Mr. Clements reports. Returns filed after that date are subject to a penalty.

'Arrest' of Kenton Dog Spurs Campaign for Humane Society

KENTON — Due to the troubles of a 105 pound St. Bernard dog named Annie, a drive for the formation of a Hardin County Humane Society is gaining momentum. A temporary committee, headed by Mrs. Will Martin of Kenton, has called a meeting for all interested persons at City Hall, Wednesday, March 27, at 8 p.m.

To aid the formation of the organization, president of the Allen County Humane Society, Russell C. Holm, and trustee of that society, Mrs. Pauline Stuckey of Lima, will attend the meeting. The group hopes a charter from the state organization will be forthcoming by that time.

Dog Put to Death

The formation of a humane society has been hoped for by many dissatisfied animal lovers in Hardin County. Mrs. Martin expressed dissatisfaction with Raymond Hattery as dog warden after he seized and put to death her 17-year-old dog, Jack. According to Mr. Hattery, he was called by the commissioners and told that the dog was on the courthouse lawn and appeared to be injured. Mr. Hattery stated that he found the dog bleeding at the mouth and crippled. He took the animal to his pound and destroyed it, due to its injuries. He said the dog was not wearing a license. Mrs. Martin said that tag or no tag, the dog was well enough known to enable Mr. Hattery to learn whose dog it was.

Mrs. Martin has pledged her active support to legal efforts to prevent 4-year-old Annie from being killed. She has received many offers of financial contributions from the aroused citizenry, people interested in the society and people wanting to directly help Annie. Plans are being made to set up a temporary treasury so that funds can be accepted. The temporary committee of the society is planning an antique show at the Hardin County fairgrounds sometime in June to raise more money for the proposed organization.

Warden Isn't Worried

Dog Warden Hattery says he isn't worried by the furor Annie has caused. He says his efficiency is why dog lovers are after him. He stated he has picked up more dogs than any other dog warden who preceded him in the job. As proof, he points to the 1,350 dogs he picked up during his first year as dog warden.

In the meantime, the accused "Annie" seems to be reasonably happy despite her imprisonment, according to Dr. George Pleasant, veterinarian and owner of the animal hospital where Annie is confined. He said St. Bernards are very quiet dogs and do not get temperamental from having their routine changed in the way Annie's has been changed. So Annie paces her 10 by 12 foot cell pending final disposition of an injunction suit filed in her behalf at Hardin County Common Pleas Court by Mrs. Joan Perkins, mother of Annie's master, Gene, now on overseas duty with the U.S. Army. The dog is accused of sheep killing.

Strong

referring to dismantling of the wooden annex to the former City Hospital, now the City Hall. The razing of the annex began during the administration of Mayor Robinson and was continued under the Ireland administration. It was Mayor Robinson's plan to save the material in the building for use in other city buildings.

Further questions he asked "the opposition" in his talk to the labor group were these:

"Is it not true that city trucks, manned by city employes, were engaged in delivery of lumber used in remodeling apartments in a privately-owned building? Is it not true that numerous citizens of Marion saw the truck and the lumber being removed therefrom?"

Mr. Strong also asked:

"Are present funds which accrue to the city from tax revenues, such as parking meters, for street maintenance and repair, being used for this purpose?"

The Republican candidate opened his address with the declaration that "The fundamental principals of organized labor are definitely and traditionally American."

"The right of labor to organize in an effort to better their own working conditions and standards of living is also traditionally American and is recognized throughout the length and breadth of our country by all segments of our society. The rights of laboring groups to organize are just the same as the rights of industry, business, banking, agriculture or any other part of our national standards of living and economic progress.

"When I filed for the candidacy for the office of mayor, I was contacted by the press and radio of our city and I made a statement from which I quote in part 'True, we have problems difficult to solve but an aroused public when fully and honestly informed have never failed to solve them. That is the American way of life.'"

Mr. Strong declared:

"In the immediate future the citizenry of the city of Marion will make decisions. These decisions will affect the lives of all of our people and generations to come.

—:—

"MARION IS IN the geographical heart of Ohio. Ohio is second industrially in the nation. When the St. Lawrence waterway is completed we will be 88 miles, by railroad or highway truck transportation, from Toledo, which will then be an ocean going port to all the world. This is or will be another outlet from manufactured products in Marion. We also have direct railroad and trucking to practically all points north, south, east and west.

"Just as our forefathers gave us wide main streets, the future of Marion depends on our vision of Marion in the future, in our ability to plan wisely and evaluate our future. This of necessity must be a long range program. But we must keep pace with both state and national programs for progress and local development.

"To do other than being a part of these long range plans means loss of industry, business, and employment, which is the life blood of our civic society and development. Marion has too long been standing on the sidelines watching the parade of proper local development pass by."

HE DECLARED that, if elected mayor, "My first objective will be to appoint a civic advisory council representing all our people in labor, financial, businessmen, professional men and women. They have the representative 'know how' for all the people. Their counsel and advice will be made known to our city council and the public generally through the medium of press and radio.

"Then and only then can your city government both administrative and legislatively go forward with full knowledge and approval of the will of the people.

"When the people are taken in full confidence, progress comes to all our society. To do other than this is to fail to live up to the trust and confidence reposed in our public servants. My only reason for being a candidate for mayor is to promote this kind of a program. I have an abiding faith in the sound judgment of our people and the future of Marion."

Approximately 170 persons heard his address.

After the talk, he was asked if he would advocate a city income tax. He answered: "No, sir."

Pool

"Those who feel they can't afford to give this much should pledge whatever they feel they can afford," the mayor added.

Mr. Quaintance and the mayor both pointed out that unless a much larger percentage of the cards are returned indicating a communitywide interest in the pool, the chances of obtaining financial assistance from other private sources are practically nil.

BUT IF A LARGE percentage of the cards are returned, even though the individual and total pledges are small, it will indicate community-wide interest and the chances of obtaining financial help from other sources will be increased materially, they said.

"I feel a swimming pool is a must," Mayor Ireland said. "We need it for our youth. It will give them the additional summertime recreation that all youths and adults need," he said.

The Marion Community Swimming Pool, Inc., the group charged with raising the funds and building the pool, plans to collect the pledges only if the total is large enough to assure that the pool may be built. They have set April 1 as the deadline for return of pledge cards. If the total is not great enough by that time, the pledges will not be collected and there is little chance a swimming pool will be built for use this year.

Mayor Ireland said today that it is hoped that if the pledge total is large enough, the pool may be completed, dedicated and placed in use at least for a part of the coming summer.

Mr. Quaintance said that he had polled all but one of the city councilmen and the eight unanimously endorsed the swimming pool project and urged that all the residents of the city do the same and support it with their pledges.

Vessels Collide

FALMOUTH, England (AP) — The 7,200-ton Italian freighter Corallo and the 5,055-ton Norwegian vessel Nopal Branco collided today about 50 miles southwest of this Cornish port.

A radio message picked up in Brest from the Corallo said the Italian vessel was leaking badly and was asking for help.

The owners of the Nopal Branco announced in Oslo that their ship was not seriously damaged and probably would continue her voyage.

Mayor Attends Parley

Blizzard

in Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

Forecasts for more heavy snow were in effect from northeastern Kansas and neighboring sections of Nebraska eastward into parts of lower Michigan and Indiana. Accumulations of from 8 to 10 inches were predicted for parts of Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri with generally lesser amounts expected over affected portions of Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and lower Michigan. North central Indiana had freezing rain and snow.

The snow belt was fringed to the south by rain.

Despite the immediate hardships resulting from the three-day storm, farmers welcomed the moisture. In some areas it was sufficient to bring expression of belief that the prolonged drought had been broken.

Temperatures were not severe —generally only a few degrees below freezing — thus minimizing chances that serious injury would be suffered by marooned travelers. Estimates of stranded motorists included 1,800 in New Mexico, 1,600 in Colorado, 1,200 in Kansas, 1,000 in Texas, and uncounted hundreds in Nebraska and Iowa.

Omaha was choked by 14 inches of snow and the fall continued this morning in the teeth of a 36-mile-an-hour wind. Lincoln, 60 miles southwest, had a similar situation. Schools in both cities were closed and some business houses failed to open.

There was 14 inches of snow in the Council Bluffs, Iowa, area, and more falling.

Phone Service Hurt

The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., reported the storm did more damage to its properties in Kansas than any previous blow. Construction crews from many parts of the Midwest converged on the battered state to restore communications and officals said damage would run over a million dollars. The entire state west and north of Hays was cut off from telephone service, as lines and poles snapped under the storm's impact.

Two storm-caused deaths were counted Sunday in Nebraska, one each in Texas and Kansas.

engineer, formerly with the turnpike.

John Heier, Columbus, engineer in charge of structures and utilities. He formerly was department deputy director for planning and programming.

The task force will be located in the former turnpike building in Columbus.

Six Firms Hired

Six consulting engineers have been hired to draw plans for the superroad between Columbus and Cleveland, each working on sections of 16 to 18 miles.

Lehman said there will be traffic interchanges with Ohio 8 and 21 and "perhaps with the Ohio Turnpike, depending on the results of a J. E. Greiner Co. survey."

Lehman's force will work primarily in the rural areas at present.

Asked what the next project of the task force will be, Noble said "We have not scheduled further than the Cincinnati - Conneaut section."

The governor said he will disclose details of his overall highway program at a press conference Tuesday morning.

The state sinking fund commission will receive bids Wednesday noon on 32 million dollars worth of major thoroughfare construction bonds. The bonds are part of 500 million dollars worth authorized previously.

the union, and has described them as loans.

He has said he borrowed between $300,000 and $400,000 in Teamster funds, without interest and without security, before he became president of the huge union 4½ years ago. He said the loans were made while he was head of the Teamsters' 11-state Western Conference. Beck claimed he has repaid the money in full.

McClellan said he will ask Beck to explain why union records reflect $270,000 in repayment of "loans" from union funds in 1954, but that available records contain no previous entry indicating any such borrowing. The Internal Revenue Service began investigating Beck's financial affairs in 1954. This probe still is under way.

Committee Asks Records

Beck is under committee orders to surrender his personal financial records for scrutiny by its accountants.

Beck has announced he will bring the records to the hearing room. But he did not make clear whether he would let the committee examine them.

If Beck should refuse to allow the committee to scrutinize his records, committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said, "We will, I feel, still be able to prove certain facts showing misuse of union funds by him."

Kennedy said committee investigators are using bank records and other sources to trace the money.

Meantime, Beck came in for heavy criticism from AFL-CIO Vice Presidents Walter Reuther and James B. Carey.

Marion Area Auto Mishaps

A seven-year-old pedestrian was hurt in one of five traffic accidents investigated over the weekend by Marion police.

She was Shirley Ann Sparling of 491 Wilson Ave. She was taken to Marion General Hospital for treatment of injuries to her face and was released to the care of her parents.

Police said she ran into the side of an automobile in the 400 block on Wilson Ave. after getting out of a car driven by Melvin Hunt of 681 E. Farming St. She ran around in front of Hunt's car and into the side of an oncoming car driven by George Wiley Fulcher, 41, of 214 S. High St., according to the report to police. The accident occurred at 6:57 p.m. Sunday.

A car driven by J. H. Hayes, 76, of 364 Lee St. struck a car parked on Windsor St. at 11 a.m. Sunday. Owner of the parked car was not determined, police said.

A car driven by F. J. Decker, 30, of 220 Hane Ave. was struck from the rear by a car driven by E. E. Goins, 32, of 278 Senate St. The accident happened at Silver and Commercial streets at 5:54 p.m. Saturday.

Each of the other two accidents caused less than $100 total damage, police estimated.

Driver Is Arrested

A mishap occurred on Route 30-S, eight miles west of Marion at 3:15 p.m. Sunday when two eastbound autos were attempting to pass in the left lane at the same time, the report indicated.

Patrolmen said a vehicle driven by Joseph Stanley Smith, 22, of Kenton, was attempting to pass an unidentified auto when a car driven by John E. Smith, 30, of 756 Fairfield St., Marion, following, attempted to pass the first Smith car.

The John E. Smith auto reportedly struck the back end of the Joseph S. Smith vehicle. Patrolmen said moderate damage was done to both and no injuries were sustained.

Joseph Stanley Smith was cited to appear in Marion Municipal Court, March 29, on a charge of failure to stop within assured clear distance.

Plant at Bucyrus Gives $500 Bond

BUCYRUS — A $500 U.S. savings bond has been presented to Thomas E. Cory, a machine repairman at the Bucyrus plant of the Timken Roller Bearing Co. who was one of the winners in the companies 1956 suggestion program for production employes.

Mr. Cory submitted an improvement of an anti-friction bearing seal used on pressure rolls for internal grinders that resulted in a reduction of maintenance and repair, according to Dwight Bessmer, a vice president of the company.

During 1956 employes of the firm's plant here submitted 227 suggestions and had 38 accepted for total payments of $2,170.

Mr. Cory's suggestion placed fifth in the contest. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Cory, Bucyrus, and a brother of City Solicitor Richard Cory.

Central Labor Group Against Time Changes

The Marion Central Labor Union is opposed to adoption of Daylight Savings Time here regardless of whether or not Columbus adopts it, according to a letter received by Mayor Gale D. Ireland today.

Written by Earl J. Camp, acting secretary of the union, the letter said the labor group had adopted a resolution opposing such a measure for Marion at a regular meeting of the organization.

The resolution said, ". . . there is no such condition as daylight saving and such practice would decidedly incur a hardship and extra cost of light bills for early morning workers and be of no gain to any workers on evening and night shifts."

Because of this the members of the organization resolved further to "express opposition to such a measure," Mr. Camp wrote.

City Council will consider legislation at its meeting tonight to adopt "fast time" here from May 12 through August 31 if Columbus adopts it. City Council in Columbus previously adopted it, then decided to put it on the May ballot after some opposition was expressed. As it now stands Columbus will go on "fast" time if no petitions are filed against it, or, if they are filed, the matter will be voted on at the May primary election.

200 Visit Red Cross Home in 'Open House'

More than 200 persons visited the Red Cross chapter home on Mt. Vernon Ave. during the weekend "open house," Miss Lillian Plack, executive secretary, reported today.

Uniformed volunteers were on hand to show persons through the building and to explain the use of the facilities.

An invitation has been extended by Miss Plack for anyone who did not have the opportunity to visit the chapter home over the weekend to do so at their convenience. "Staff workers will be happy to show interested persons through the new headquarters," she said.

Teamsters' Racket

By Victor Riesel

The Shoshone Indians must have known that Dave Beck's tribe was a-coming — the good red men called the territory "Oregon," meaning the place of plenty. This the teamsters have taken seriously for some 40 years, a special blood curdling report shows.

VICTOR RIESEL

No secret report, this. It's just been forgotten, that's all. But it's there, all 41 pages packed with arson and violence.

True, it's almost 20 years old. But if those inside labor hadn't yawned at it then, in 1938, they might not be gathering in small groups wondering what an angered public will do now.

Today it seems that over a million dollars has been "handled" by Western teamster tycoons as though dues collections were a convenience and not a trust.

The teamsters went on a tear in Oregon shortly after that ancient bout called World War I ended. So widespread and terror-filled were the days of the next decades that in 1938 Gov. Martin appointed a special investigator, Ralph Moody.

Mr. Moody wiped his horrified brow and turned in a 41 page report. Sweep the dust from it now and you will find that 120 persons were charged with 232 crimes, including arson, assault and battery, etc.

Sixty-five pleaded guilty. Eleven were convicted. Two were acquitted. The rest were released for insufficient evidence or pending trial.

BECK'S CHIEF representative, A. E. Rosser, was convicted of arson, while the treasury under his stewardship had unaccounted-for disbursements of over $40,000 for one year alone.

All this was within the boundary of the barony known as the Western Conference of Teamsters.

It did not impede the progress of destiny's man, Dave Beck, or his partner, Frank Brewster, who seems to have preferred the breed of horses to the breed known as the working man.

Beck barked his way to his brand of fame and cash fortune like my old friends on New York's lower east side used to say. Brewster made his Valhalla, the Washington State Racing Commission—appointed by Gov. Mon Wallgren.

The years pass and we find ourselves sitting center table before the celebrity-laden dais at a merry banquet atop the lush Chase Hotel in St. Louis. Though part of this roof garden was covered only by the heavens this balmy Sept. 24, 1953, Beck's voice echoed and re-echoed against the skies.

HE HAD BEEN president of the teamsters scarcely a year, yet he had profound things to say at this dinner in his honor — given, of course, by the teamsters.

"We will not tolerate within the membership of this international union any man who forgets his obligations to this organization. There is no place in this international union for muscle - men, soft money men, racketeers, or anything that in any way, shape or manner resembles them. We will not tolerate them where we find them. We will drive them out of this International Union. . .," roared Beck.

Those words were heard by virtually all of labor's leaders. They were applauded and reported.

The record stutters for itself. There has been little action, although dark clouds replaced the balmy skies of that September evening.

Now there is great anguish inside labor. There is fear that all labor will be blackened and that an angry people will demand drastic laws.

Yet when the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee met on Friday, March 15, in the great new house of labor, there was just passing discussion of the teamsters and, indeed, of the Senate probe itself.

THE EXPOSURES in the Senate hearing room were raised by National Maritime Union leader Joe Curran.

Curran urged action or a probe by labor, or some sort of statement by the guardians of the code of decency. Yet the hours slipped by and nothing was said.

This committee is made up of honest and sophisticated men. Yet they did not act. But their honesty cannot be impugned.

They are as confused and indecisive as a pitcher with three men on and all suddenly stealing the next sack.

There is such an enormity to all this that perhaps we cannot blame them too much for faltering action. Their mistake was permitting it to roll on for so many decades. But neither can the public nor the press be blamed for their angry outcries.

Actress Likes U.S.

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — The only time Eva Bartok acts like a Hungarian actress is when people tell her in surprise, "Why, you don't act at all like a Hungarian actress."

HAL BOYLE

That remark causes the slender, dark - eyed star, who was born in Budapest, to blow up a real temperamental storm.

"One Hollywood writer said I was a very unusual Hungarian actress because I wasn't blonde, didn't mangle the English language, and was quiet," she fumed.

"What did they expect me to do —break up all the studio furniture?"

—:—

MISS BARTOK, who twinkles brightly in the European celluloid sky, recently completed her first American film—an M.G.M. opus called "Ten Thousand Bedrooms" in which she co-stars with Dean Martin.

"It is a nice clean comedy and has nothing to do with bedrooms," she said. "All she did was act in the picture. Somebody else gave it the title. Maybe Jerry Lewis."

Miss Bartok, although she came here to make a single picture, has signed up for another, and is contemplating a TV series that will inevitably be known as "Forever Eva," and tell the story of a young Hungarian girl's struggles in this country.

EVA HOPES that meanwhile she can clear up the misconception that Hungarians are a madcap, harum-scarum bunch of footloose Bohemians.

She feels that this slander on her people has been given currency by playwright Ferenc Molnar's jest that, "Anyone who has a Hungarian for a friend, doesn't need an enemy."

"Molnar shouldn't have said that," she remarked. "Anyway, it is just his version of an old Hungarian joke about Romanians, which every Hungarian schoolchild knows.

"We have another schoolday joke about what is the difference between a Romanian and a Czecho-Slovak. The answer is that each of them would agree to sell his mother — but only the Romanian would make delivery."

—:—

ASKED TO DEFINE the actual virtues and defects of Hungarians, Eva (who is now a British subject) said:

"People are individuals, and I hate to generalize. But most Hungarians are generous, talented, love foreigners, and have a good sense of humor. But because they have known long hardship their jokes are wry — it is a gallows humor.

"On the bad side, Hungarians, particularly in Budapest, are inclined to be sophisticated and cynical and sometimes are a bit — how do you say it — two-faced? But this is because of Hungary's geographical position. They must say things that will please her neighbors on all sides."

Accreditation Is Granted to Local Hospital

Accreditation of Marion General Hospital by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals for a new three-year period was announced today by Miss Irene Tinklepaugh, hospital administrator.

Notice of the accreditation was contained in a letter from Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, director of the commission. He said the new period of accreditation was recommended on the basis of an inspection of the local hospital made Jan. 29 by Dr. Philip C. Guarini, field representative for the commission.

Accreditation means that the hospital has met all the standards set up by the joint commission as minimum requirements for a hospital to be accredited.

"These standards are considered necessary to insure the quality of medical care in a hospital which the joint commission can faithfully recommend to the public," stated Dr. Babcock.

In the letter, Dr. Babcock said that the commission commended the hospital staff and Miss Tinklepaugh on the maintenance of standards deserving of accreditation and "for your constant effort to improve the quality of patient care."

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fire destroyed four suites on the top floor of the Embassy Apartments, Sunday and drove some 200 occupants of the four-story building into the street. Firemen estimated damage at $100,000 Two occupants trapped in a top-floor apartment were rescued by firemen. No one was injured.

Watchdog's Efficiency Is Cut by Motherhood

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn watchdog named Queenie is so rattled by motherhood she can't tell friend from foe.

Queenie, a German Shepherd, and her four new pups remained as quiet as church mice Friday night as burglars rifled a cigarette machine in the restaurant operated by her master, William Wise.

He didn't expect the pups to be alert, but he thought he could count on Queenie.

She was ready Sunday. When a patrolman came to examine the scene of the crime, Queenie bit him on the ankle.

Manners Didn't Pay

HOUSTON Tex (AP)—The skipper of the British freighter Meadowbrook is a polite chap, y'know. Dropped his anchors Sunday to let another ship enter the channel ahead of him.

Then the British ship had windlass trouble. Couldn't raise the hooks.

What with the high winds and all, 11 ships were held up.

A floating crane was called but the Meadowbrook was still stuck early today.

During the 10-week session, class members will receive practical driving experience and attend lectures on rules of the road. James Gibson, Harding driver education instructor, will conduct the classes.

Alligator Troublesome Pet, Winds Up in Zoo

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Young Pete lost his home Sunday with the Frank R. Goodman family, but it helped Melvin's nerves considerably.

Pete became bothersome of late. He took to hiding in closets and snapping at the Goodmans, including their son and daughter. He hissed at Melvin and slipped out for swims in a nearby creek, and that worried fishermen, neighbors and swimmers.

So the Goodmans kept Melvin, the cat, at home, but Pete, a two-foot-long [illegible]ator, was given to the Hogle Zoo.

The first opthalmologist, Hippocrates, recommended in 500 B.C. that treatment for eye ailments include restricted diet and hot foot baths.

Ohio's Building Program Progresses

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's program of new construction at hospitals, prisons and schools is moving along at a fast clip, state officials say, with some building already underway and more to come this year.

The program is financed by a 150 million dollar bond issue approved by the voters in 1955.

Appropriations are limited to 30 million dollars a year from bond funds. The first was made in January, 1956. The Legislature this year plans to appropriate 60 million more for 1957-58 construction.

Breakdown of Spending

Here is a summary of where the money is going:

Construction has started on a 150-bed reception and diagnostic center at the Columbus State School, at a cost of $650,000. Officials are ready to ask for bids on a $1,400,000 centralized food preparation and service unit

Drawings are nearly completed for a 150-bed central reception and classification center addition to the juvenile diagnostic center. Other drawings are well under way for a 100-bed psychiatric treatment institution for delinquent children. Each will cost $1,500,000.

The division of correction will advertise next month for bids on an 11 million dollar medium security reformatory at Lebanon.

Contracts for a million-dollar, 175-bed center for the mentally retarded at Apple Creek State Hospital have already been awarded, and officials of the Division of Mental Hygiene are ready to advertise for bids on a new 100-bed patient building at the same institution.

Other Hospitals

Appropriations for other hospitals are:

Hawthornden, $1,000,000 for a 200-bed patient building and $585,000 for expansion of central facilities, working drawings are under way.

Cleveland State Hospital, $750,000 for a 100-bed medical and surgical building; basic drawings nearly completed

Cleveland Receiving Hospital, $700,000 to enlarge buildings; drawing nearly completed.

Dayton, $1,500,000 for a 100-bed children's psychiatric unit, drawings under way. Next Tuesday, bids will be opened on a $250,000 project to complete a 100-bed adult receiving hospital at Dayton

Toledo, $500,000 for a 100-bed therapy unit; almost ready to advertise for bids.

Tiffin, $750,000 for a 120-bed reception and intensive therapy unit; bids will be asked next month.

Arrangements Sought to Let Mexican Child Remain in U.S.

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — A 13-year-old Mexican girl may be able to make the United States her home after all.

Little Mercedes Cota was ordered back to her grandparents in Nogales, Mexico because officials said she was in this country illegally.

Mercedes was brought here 2½ years ago by Mrs. Jeanine Teterick, who said she had the grandparents' permission.

But Miss Gertrude Ramey, head of the children's home where Mercedes has been staying the past four months, said Sunday as soon as the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service completes arrangements, she will accompany Mercedes to Nogales, Ariz.

It was in the Arizona town just across the Mexican border where Mrs. Teterick found Mercedes She brought the girl here and later was charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency for not sending Mercedes to school.

Mercedes was ordered placed in the Gertrude Ramey Children's Home and the Mexican Embassy in Washington advised "the best thing for all concerned is that she (Mercedes) be returned to her grandparents as soon as possible."

Miss Ramey said Sunday she hopes to be able to talk with Mercedes' grandparents, Angel and Juanita Cota of Nogales, Sonora, Mexico.

She wants to arrange for Mercedes to return to the United States legally.

"There have been lots of offers from people who want to be responsible for her," she said.

Lucas Changes Record Book as Middies Nail Title

Ayersville Downs Gratis, Takes Class A Court Title

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — They'll be talking a long time about Ohio's 35th Annual High School Basketball Tournament—and one of the big topics will be fabulous Jerry Lucas of Middletown's Class AA kings.

The magnificent Middies triumphed 64-54 over Kent Roosevelt's fine defensive squad for their second straight title, their seventh in 14 yeasr, their fifth in 10 tries under Coach Paul Walker, and their 52nd straight victory.

First Attempt

Ayersville, making its first trip to the big tourney, and with Lee Himmeger in his first year of coaching, grabbed the Class A crown with a 74-73 overtime win over Gratis.

Lucas, the most phenominal cager ever to wear an Ohio uniform, scored 74 of Middletown's 134 points in the two games. He's never played in a losing game in 52 starts, but he kept that record intact all by himself. In Friday's semi-finals against Toledo Macomber his 30-foot jump shot, which swished through the net after the buzzer had sounded, tied the count—and then he got five straight points in the overtime to sew it up.

Figuring that the best four teams among the state's 349 Class AA teams get to the state meet, Lucas has an unprecedented record against the Buckeye elite. Charley Boykin, Kent State's masterful center and captain, held him to 28 in Saturday's finale, but Lucas' four-game score by quarters for two state tournaments reads:

1956 at Cleveland

Cleveland East Tech:
	10	14	16	13	—53
Canton McKinley:	14	12	10	8	—44

1957 at Columbus

Toledo Macomber:
	8	11	10	12	5—46
Kent Roosevelt:	6	8	8	6	—28

That figures up to 171 points in four games, an average of 43.7. In the four games he's made 47 of 54 free throws, making 13 of 15, 8 of 10, 14 of 16, and 12 of 13. The 14-16 figure set Friday night, and his 47-54 total are both state records, as is the 26-29 free throw mark of the 1957 games.

Holds All Records

The amazing youngster holds every scoring record in the book for single games, two-game tournaments and four games—including those for points, field goals and free throws. No other player, of the hundreds who have played in the 35 tournaments, holds any of the top-performance records.

And the lovely thing, to Coach Walker, is that Jerry, a straight "A" student, will be around for another year. The other coaches are not so happy about it.

Boykin, who held Lucas under 44 points for the first time in a tournament game, was second in the Class AA scoring with 43 points. The Class A laurels went to Marv Hohenberger of Ayersville, who had a total of 50, eight ahead of Penny Carter, diminutive guard for Gratis.

Hohenberger and his running mate, Jim Hammersmith, were named to the All-Tournament Class A team along with Zane Leeds and Carter of Gratis, and Ed Bode of Bethel. The Class AA team, also named by the scores of sports writers covering the finals, was made up of Boykin and Ronnie Brown of Kent Roosevelt, Bunk Adams of Toledo Macomber, Ray Zawadski of Cleveland Cathedral Latin, and Lucas.

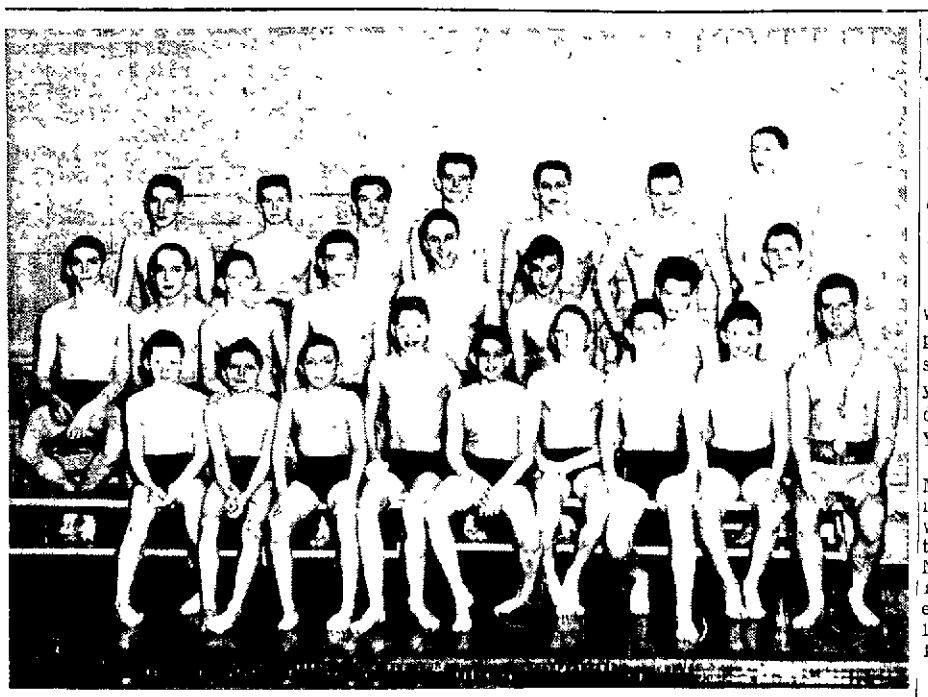
Magicians Clip Spivey, Mates in 95-90 Battle

The Harlem Magicians pulled away in the second half to bump the Kentucky Colonels 95-90 Sunday night at the Coliseum.

Paced by Bill Spivey, 7-1 All-American from the University of Kentucky, the Colonels battled the Magicians to a 22-22 deadlock in the opening stanza and then moved into a 50-47 edge at the half.

Marques Haynes and Goose Tatum took over in the third period to lead their squad into a 75-72 edge at the start of the final stanza.



SWIMMING SEASON CONCLUDED. With the annual area swimming meet in Columbus Saturday, activities for this year's YMCA junior and intermediate natatorium teams were completed. All in all, the season was a complete success, according to Coach Warren Foster, in his fourth year at the helm of the "Y" tankmen. The group won 19 meets and lost nine as a whole, while the junior squad took 10 straight victories. Members of the squad are, top row (left to right): Dick White, Ray Tillman, Dan Sampley, Paul Emerson, Ed Cooper, Dan Thompson and Joe Cochran. Second row, (left to right): Jay Carroll, Bob Rhoads, Ken Tillman, Tom Prichard, Hardy Duerson, Tom Ruzzo, Tom Sampley and Al McKee. YMCA Mermen Finish Third in Area Action

The Marion YMCA junior and intermediate swimming teams wound up their tank activities for the season Saturday by placing third at the annual Ohio-West Virginia Area Swimming Championships in the Ohio State University pool. Dayton and Toledo finished first and second respectively.

The Marion swimmers collected a total of 43 points to place third in the field of 32 teams entered in the competition. Eleven teams failed to score. Dayton, defending champion, hung on to its crown by taking a win, 89-87, from Toledo. The Toledoan's junior squad, however, grabbed the junior title from Dayton by a two-digit margin.

IN CHURNING TO their third-place finish, Marion's tankers made some creditable showings. Topping their performance was Tom Prichard, who broke the state and team mark in the 100-yard freestyle with a qualifying time of 56.8 seconds. Prichard was beaten in the event, however, when Canton McKinley's Marty Mull lowered the mark to 56.3.

Other Marion highs went to Bob Finney, who finished third in the diving event. The medley relay team of Ken Tillman, Alan McKee, Tom Prichard and Bruce Kohler also placed third, although they broke the standing record for the event of 2:08.3. Dayton and Toledo were one-two in the finish, with Dayton setting a new team record of 2:07.7.

Both Marion relay teams qualified, with the medley team of Ed Cooper, Dennis Ruppart, Joe Cochran and Ray Tillman finishing fourth. The freestyle team of Dan Sampley, Paul Emerson, Bob Rhoads and Steve Sulser took a sixth place. Freestyler Ray Tillman swam his fastest race in the 50-yard event, but his time of 25.8 was only good enough for eighth place among the 34 entries.

IN THE JUNIOR standings, the local freestyle relay team of Tom Sampley, Hardy Duerson, Alan McKee and Bruce Kohler, after qualifying, was disqualified while in second place in the race after missing a turn.

Scoring for teams besides Dayton, Toledo and Marion were the following tank squads: Dover, 28; Cleveland University Circle, 27; Canton, 27; Lakewood, 26; Wheeling, 19, Lima, 18; Akron, 17; Cleveland Central, 17; Warren, 15; Hamilton, 14; Cuyahoga Falls, 14; Massillon, 9; Cincinnati Parkway, 7; Wooster, 6; Columbus, 5; Springfield 2; and Middletown, 1.

Tribe Batters Criticized by Kerby Farrell

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Manager Kerby Farrell blames the Cleveland Indians' poor hitting in the exhibition games on "takin' too many good pitches."

The Tribe has been held to an average of six hits a game in the last six games.

Rookie catcher Russ Nixon has been the Indians' most consistent hitter and Farrell lets him catch every day.

"I want the kid to make the team," he tells the older pitchers. "Help him all you can."

Veteran catcher-coach Jim Hegan also has been concentrating on Nixon.

First baseman Vic Wertz hit a three-run homer to back up three-hit pitching by Herb Score and Don Mossi Sunday as the Indians defeated the New York Giants, 4-3, to snap a five-game losing streak.

A home run by Willie Mays off Score in the fourth inning was the Giants' only run until the ninth, when three Indian errors gave the National Leaguers two runs. Mossi had retired nine batters in a row going into the ninth.

The Indians were held to five hits by Dick Littlefield, Al Worthington and Marv Grissom. Wertz connected with a single in addition to his home run and Nixon hit two singles. The Indians' other hit was a single by Rocky Colavito.

Wins in Second Year

Local Mat Squad Hits Top, Takes 2-State YMCA Crown

A victory-minded Marion YMCA wrestling team did the almost impossible stunt of winning a two-state championship in its second year of competition Saturday by dominating the Ohio West-Virginia YMCA wrestling tournament.

Led by Bill Thatcher and Les McMurray, each of whom gained individual championships, along with seven second place winners, the locals led their nearest rivals, North Canton, by a 25-17 margain. Team scoring behind the two leaders was, Zanesville 10, Columbus 10, Wheeling 8, Cincinnati 5, Lima 1, Cleveland 0, and Parkersburg 0.

THE MARION SQUAD turned the tide in the preliminary events by sewing up nine places in the finals to insure the necessary points. However, winning these important weeding out matches was not easily done as several of the boys were eliminated and many found the going extremely tough.

Chris Kimball having to wrestle at 112 pounds instead of 103 lost to Maurer of Lima by a pin early in the second period after holding his opponent to only two points. Dale Kibbey won his first match at 112 by a default over Mariek of Cleveland. Al Reich, at 120, lost to Haley of North Canton by a pin in the third period after fighting a close 4-2 match.

Thatcher won his 12th in a row by a pin over Frye of Columbus early in the first period to advance to the finals in 133 along with Bud Kelley who got a default over Willis of North Canton.

Gene Bowman blasted Bell of Cincinnati with a second period pin at 138 pounds to gain the final brackel. John Bull pinned Swingle of Zanesville in the second period for a victory in the 145 class. Don Haynes followed suit, at 145, to pin Hutson of Zanesville in the last period after leading 10-2.

Captain Les McMurray gained an 8-2 victory over Reed of Lima in one of the toughest matches of the afternoon. The score was knotted at 2-2 going into the last period but a last minute drive by McMurray gained him the win.

—:—

CLYDE THOMAS lost a heart breaker to Dorish of North Canton on riding time having wrestled to a 4-4 tie. Thomas led going into the first frame but dropped four points in the second period while only gaining two.

John Bull was eliminated in a semifinal match against the eventual 145 winner by a scant 3-margin.

In the finals it was all Marion. A scrappy Dale Kibbey held Morris of North Canton to an 8-2 victory to gain second place in the 112-pound division. Morris had been undefeated in 14 straight matches and had beaten all opponents on pins but Kibbey refused to submit to the final hold.

Joel Lenavitt lost a heartbreaker to Worstall of Zanesville to gain second in the area Worstall had beaten Lenavitt twice this year by sizable scores but wrestled to a 2-2 tie and Lenavitt fell a little short on riding time to drop the nod.

Bill Thatcher wrapped up the season with 13 straight wins by pins in beating teammate Bud Kelley in the second period. Thatcher led 4-2 at the time of the fall and Kelley was fighting hard all the way.

Gene Bowman lost a 6-2 count at the hands of McAnich of Wheeling at 138 to settle for second place in the area. The score was tied at 2-2, in the middle of the second stanza but a four-point barrage by the Wheeling grappler took the title from Marion.

Don Haynes lost a 6-0 decision to Baughman of Cincinnati to take second in the 145-pound class. Baughman scored two points in every frame to sew up the situation over a scrappy Haynes.

LES McMURRAY beat teammate Dick Kibbey by a fall in the second frame after leading 4-0 up to that time. The victory gave Marion a first and second in the 154 division. Bill Bruce lost to repeating State Champion Tom Jones of Zanesville to take second in the fray. Jones led 4-0 before administering the terminating hold.

The locals ended the season with a 6-1 dual meet record and a victory in the Marion Invitational and a State Championship. Bill Thatcher led the squad with a 13-0 record but every boy on the team whether he wrestled on the first team or not did a lot to the winning of the crown, Coach Dean Ludwig said.

The team will hold a squad meeting tonight to elect a captain and most valuable wrestler for this year.

"I believe that Marion should be awfully proud of its boys, they all did a fine job, and we are awfully thrilled with their rapid improvement and tremendous desire to win. It was not only one or two men who did all this for us, it was the entire team, and wonderful team spirit," Coach Ludwig said today.

Tar Heels Nip Kansas 54-53 in Overtime Tilt

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The North Carolina Tar Heels defied the percentages and odds to win their first NCAA basketball championship by beating the Kansas Jayhawks 54-53 in a triple-overtime Saturday night.

Playing before a jam-packed crowd of 10,500, most of them pro-Kansas, Coach Frank McGuire's Tar Heels stretched their one-season all-victory record to 32 games. A night earlier they had gone three extra five-minute sessions in beating Michigan State 74-70 in the semi-finals.

The final game of the NCAA's 19th tournament was a championship test between teams rated No. 1 and No. 2 in the Associated Press poll of sportswriters and sportscasters. And it finished according to the script.

A brief scuffle in the second overtime involving two or three players and both coaches enlivened the proceedings.

The title was decided with six seconds remaining in the third overtime when Joe Quigg, a 6-9 junior from Brooklyn, N.Y., made two free throws. Kansas had the last shot, but Quigg blocked that one to insure the Tar Heel victory.

North Carolina played the three overtimes without the services of All America Lennie Rosenbluth, who fouled out with 1:45 remaining in regulation time. His team trailed them by one point, 43-44.

It was tied 46-46 after the first 40 minutes, 48-all after the first overtime and again 48-48 after the second extra session.

Wilt Chamberlain, Kansas All America who was voted the most valuable player of the tournament was the games' leading scorer with 23 points. Rosenbluth had 20.

The San Francisco Dons, champions the last two years, defeated Michigan State 67-60 for third place.

Roaring Celebrations Staged In Greeting State's Champions

By The Associated Press

Middletown and Ayersville all but turned upside down Sunday as cheering thousands greeted the new Ohio high school basketball champions on their return from the state finals in Columbus.

Nearly 200 cars carrying some 1,000 local fans formed a motorcade to escort Ayersville's Pilots, new Class A titleholders, into their home town.

Fans Line Streets

Thousands more lined city streets in Middletown as the Middies returned with their second straight Class AA championship.

Both teams had to win fantastic, down-to-the-wire thrillers to capture their crowns.

The Pilots clinched theirs with a 74-73 overtime triumph against Gratis of Preble County.

The Middies, although they breezed their way to a 64-54 win over Kent Roosevelt in the deciding tilt Saturday night, had to fight their way to a 70-65 win over Toledo Macomber Friday night to earn their ticket to the finals.

Jets Take Part

Police had to restrain the tumultuous crowd as the Middies rode through downtown Middletown on their way to homecoming ceremonies at the high school gym.

A hooting train whistle and a formation of low-flying jet fighters signalled their return.

Middletown sport fans also chipped in enough cash to buy Middie Coach Paul Walker a new station wagon.

At Ayersville, the triumphant Pilots were met at the village outskirts by the high school band as a parade of jubilant fans headed for the high school gym and an informal victory celebration.

Coach Pleased With Prexies' First Efforts

"More than pleased. but not satisfied." That's what Coach Lou Ralston thought of the first intra squad game of his Harding High School baseball players Saturday on the Harding diamond.

The game, the first of two such events before the Prexy nine opens its season April 6 at Bexley, was played between teams A and B. Coach Ralston pointed out that the placing of players on either team Saturday did not necessarily mean they would or would not wind up on the varsity. "We will make some changes and do some shifting around between now and the start of the season," Ralston said this morning. "The positions are still wide open to all comers."

By game's end Saturday, team A had taken a 10-4 victory from the B squad. The A's bunched five runs in the first inning as eight players paraded to the plate to shell B hurler Jim Harris. The rest of the runs were scattered.

"Both teams hit very well and both squads had some good hustle and chatter," Ralston observed. "However, there were too many mistakes made, both in the field and at the plate, and the boys were paying too little attention to the game at times. Those things will be ironed out in practice sessions to come."

Diamond mentor Ralston noted that some of his players were not "relaxed," that some of them were "loafing down the first base line" and that the relays from the outfield were somewhat ragged. "All in all," he said, "I thought we did show up pretty well for the first full seven innings of the season. Some of the arms weren't too loose yet and we didn't try to push too hard," he added.

The Prexy opener will be a doubleheader with Bexley, with the latter considered one of the strongest teams in the area.

Distributors of Gasoline Hit By Strike in South Michigan

DETROIT (AP) — Union workers struck Aurora Gasoline Co., here early today, bringing to eight the number of companies shut down by walkouts. The strike cut gasoline and fuel oil deliveries to an estimated 90 per cent of the outlets in southeast Michigan.

The only major distributing firms left unhit by the series of strikes are Sun Oil Co. and Cities Service.

Aurora is one of the larger independent distributors.

M. David Keefe, manager of industrial relations for the Aurora refinery here, accused the union of making "desperate efforts" to dry up Detroit's oil and gasoline supplies.

He said the strike is illegal because 30-day notice of a walkout is required.

The Aurora plant was struck by Local 456 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union. Local 389 struck the other seven distributors at different times in the last 24 days.

A meeting of state and federal mediators and representatives of Local 389 was set for today.

Joseph Henson, an international representative of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union, said the union would supply gasoline to police and fire department vehicles if the service is requested.

The union is seeking a wage increase of 25 cents an hour. Most of the companies have offered a 9-cent increase. Some independents reached an agreement with the union calling for hourly increases ranging from 15 to 18 cents an hour. Average wages were not disclosed.

Radio and Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Emmy Awards

"We didn't come to bury Caesar; we came to praise him," might well have been the refrain at the Emmy Awards on television the other night. The Sid Caesar Show, incluidng two of his current playmates and one of his ex-TV-wives and Mr. Caesar himself, ran off with a total of five emmies, which, I believe, sets some kind of a record. And this, mind you, for a show which is in grave trouble—if you believe ratings and many people do.

JOHN CROSBY

Years ago, I recall there was a superstition — which, like all superstitions, was at least partly based on fact — that winning a movie Oscar was one of the surest first steps toward oblivion.

At least one winner, Luise Rainer, won two Oscars in a row and has hardly worked since. Well, last year Nanette Fabray won a pair of Emmies, and lost her job. This year she won another one and promptly came unglued in front of the cameras, conceivably thinking of Miss Rainer.

THE EMMY STARTED out some years ago as one of the most peculiar awards in the business. Some of the early Emmies were won by unknown local TV performers in Hollywood for reasons which remain shrouded in obscurity. However, over the years, with the growth of industry acceptance, the Emmies have become more and more respectable and also more and more well deserved.

I still think that they give out many too many Emmies, that the whole idea of awards is negated when you hand them out by the bushel basket, as is still being done.

I still think there are many too many categories and also a state of hopeless confusion as to who is in what category.

It still seems to my severely practical Scotch mind that there might be an arbitrary limit of, say, five Emmies to be handed out—making them really pearls of great price — to the five most deserving people in the business, whether they be actors, writers, directors or anyone who has clearly pushed this crazy industry ahead an inch or two. And devil take the categories.

HOWEVER, HAVING MADE these carping complaints, I must confess that I agreed wholeheartedly with just about every single award that was made. In a field which spawned so many dramas a year, no one can clearly say who gave the best performance, but certainly no one gave better ones than Jack Palance in "Requiem for a Heavyweight," or Claire Trevor in "Dodsworth." No one wrote a better script than "Requiem" which was by Rod Serling.

All these deserving folks were saluted not by critics like me, but by their fellow actors and their fellow writers, which must be the best kind of commendation of all.

If awards have any reason for existing at all, it is to encourage the very best in the industry and not simply to reward the most successful. For that reason, I am happy that "Playhouse 90" was adjudged the best new program.

CBS stuck its neck out a country mile when it decided to attempt an hour and a half long drama every week. It would have been much easier to have loaded that hour and a half with imitations of the $64,000 Question."

BUT CBS DID NOT take the easiest course; it aimed at a top flight drama, with top flight casts, and top flight writing and top flight production. In other words, it aimed not only at one goal — success — but at two — quality and success — and achieved both. It eminently deserved a prize.

I do not see how anyone can quarrel with the selections of Perry Como and Dinah Shore as the top male and female personalities either. There could hardly have been any other choice. Both are entertainers of rare quality and such enormous skill and experience that it does not look as if they are performing at all.

Only their fellow performers realize how much talent and show business knowledge it takes to perform without seeming to. And the award to Leonard Bernstein must have made all the fans of that mercurial fellow very happy, too.

Congratulations are in order, I think, not only for the winners, but for the non-winners who showed such excellent taste in picking the winners.

Combat Molesters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A "block parent" system for protection of schoolchildren from molesters, or in case of injury, is catching on in an area of West Los Angeles.

There are now 83 houses in the Overland Avenue Elementary School area where "block parent" signs are posted in windows. The goal is for 150 in all. The idea is that children going to and from school can take refuge at any "B-P" house.

The signs also mean that the householders are available in case of trouble to call police, parents or an ambulance.

Scrap Rubber Burns

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Seven acres of scrap rubber was still smouldering in spots today, and Fire Chief Gerald Vernotzy says it may take a week to completely extinguish the fire that broke out Sunday at the A. Schulman, Inc., storage yards. He said the long fight was necessary because rubber at the top of the heaps—20 feet high in some places—shed water and protected the flames at the bottom. Thousands of Sunday motorists were attracted by huge clouds of black smoke at the storage yards.

Mushroom Soup Adds to Egg Omelet Flavor

Condensed mushroom soup is fast becoming a popular condiment for augmenting the flavor of everyday dishes.

For this low cost main dish, the soup is spooned over the skillet egg omelet and placed in the broiler to brown the cheese topping and heat the mushroom sauce.

To prepare the omelet, use
2 cups cooked white rice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
6 eggs, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of black pepper
One-third cup milk
1 10½ oz. can condensed cream of mushroom soup.
½ cup milk
1 cup grated American cheese, sharp cheese or Swiss cheese
Finely chopped parsley, green onions or paprika, optional

Put two-thirds cup uncooked white rice, 1 teaspoon salt and one and one-third cups water in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat down low. Cover and simmer 14 minutes. Remove saucepan from heat but leave the lid on 10 minutes.

Heat, but do not brown, the butter or margarine in 10-inch skillet. Beat together eggs, salt, pepper and one-third cup milk. Pour into the hot fat. Turn heat high for a moment then down low.

Push some of the cooked egg away from the bottom of the skillet so uncooked egg can cook. As egg begins to set, spoon the cooked rice over it so the rice will mix with the uncooked egg. Cook until the egg is firm and light brown underneath.

Grease an oven-proof platter or shallow baking dish about 12" x 7½". Slip the omelet onto the dish or platter folding one half over the other. Mix together the soup and ½ cup milk. Pour around the omelet.

Sprinkle the cheese over the top of the omelet. Place under the broiler until the cheese melts and lightly browns and the sauce is hot. Serve immediately, sprinkled with parsley, onions or paprika, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Marion Man Hoping To See K-9 Corps Buddies in Chicago

A Marion man who spent much of his time training and handling dogs in the K-9 corps during World War II is hoping to meet many of his war-time buddies in Chicago next weekend.

Wrote Many Letters

A. D. Swartz of 377 Leader St., a former sergeant in the K-9 corps, has laid much of the groundwork for the first reunion of military and civilian personnel who were connected with the program during the war.

This has meant writing countless letters to all parts of the United States in an effort to contact as many former K-9ers as possible.

The meeting is scheduled to coincide with the International Kennel Club Show at the Union Stockyards Amphitheater in Chicago March 30-31.

"This will be our first meeting but surely not our last," declared Mr. Swartz, who hopes to make the reunion an annual affair.

"I have received many inquiries regarding this meeting," he said, "and as a last call, I want to urge all former K-9ers who are interested to attend if they possibly can."

Served in Nebraska

During the war, the K-9 program centered in training camps located near Crawford, Neb., Front Royal, Va., and San Mateo, Calif. The Coast Guard maintained a unit at its Curtis Bay station near Baltimore. Mr. Swartz served at the Nebraska post, Ft. Robinson.

All branches of the armed forces trained and used dogs during the war for sentry and scout work and for search and rescue. Civilians of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the American Red Cross and American Kennel Club also entered the program.

Only one note of sadness is expected to accompany what should be a happy reunion, said Mr. Swartz. It is doubtful that any of the old canine soldiers will be able to attend, and these, he said, will be sorely missed by the men who trained and fought with them.

Affinity for Quakes

POTTSTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Warning to Californians: Martin Hachner plans to return again next year.

Bachner, technical manager of the Firestone Plastics Co. here, was in Los Angeles on business the day in January 1956 when a destructive earthquake hit Bakersfield and surrounding areas.

And he flew into San Francisco for the day last Friday morning when another series of earth tremors caused millions of dollars in damage.

Plenty of Tickets

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's some speculation that Chicago merchant Sol Polk enjoyed the movie "Around the World in 80 Days."

He's just bought $105,885 worth of tickets to it.

Polk, proprietor of a big appliance house in Chicago, plans to give the tickets to his customers, at the rate of 100 a performance for a year.

REX MORGAN, M.D. By Dal Curtis

IS MARTHA HERE, DR. MORGAN?
SHE'S WITH HER FATHER, MAL! DR. SHELBY AND I HAVE ADVISED HER TO LET US PLACE MR. LOCK IN AN INSTITUTION!
SHE WANTED TO SEE HER FATHER ALONE FOR A WHILE BEFORE SHE MADE A DECISION!
I HAD BETTER GO SEE HER!
NO, MAL! IT'S A DECISION THAT ONLY MARTHA CAN MAKE! NOT ONE OF US HERE CAN MAKE IT FOR HER!

STEVE CANYON By Milton Caniff

I AM WHAT, YOU CLOD?
MISS CALHOUN, I SAID YOU ARE UNDER ARREST FOR MAKING A MONEY BET ON STATE UNIVERSITY PROPERTY. YOU MUST HAVE FORGOTTEN THAT YOUR BODYGUARD IS A STATE POLICE PLAINCLOTHESMAN!
I WILL CONFISCATE AS EVIDENCE THAT $500 YOU WERE BETTING ON VALLEY ACADEMY! YOU WITNESSES WILL PLEASE GIVE ME YOUR NAMES!
OLSON! GET MY LAWYERS ON THE PHONE — FAST!
—AND, MRS. OLSON, YOU'D BETTER FIND SOME BAIL MONEY! — WE CLODS TAKE OUR ANTI-GAMBLING LAWS ABSURDLY SERIOUSLY!
POTEET SENT US THESE RESERVED SEATS — AND THE BODYGUARD CAME AFTER AN ANONYMOUS TELEPHONED THREAT... THE CHILD GUESSED THAT COPPER DIDN'T KNOW THE LAW AND WOULD TRY TO BET ON THE GAME — POTEET, FOR THIS YOU DESERVE TO WIN A NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP!

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME By Jimmy Hatlo

...AND SO — GOOD-BYE. NOW LET ME INTRODUCE MR. AMBUSH CLEAVER, WHO HAS BEEN SENT HERE AS MANAGER BY THE NEW OWNERS.
THE OLD MAN SAID A MOUTHFUL WITH THAT "GOOD LUCK". THIS HATCHET MAN WOULD FIRE THE ORPHANS OUTA THE SHELTER HOME!
BLOODSTONE & TURNIP ONLY BOUGHT THE OUTFIT TO TAKE A LOSS AS A TAX GIMMICK... SO HE'LL BRING IN HIS OWN GOONS TO MAKE SURE!
HOWDO. AS OF TODAY THIS FIRM IS UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT! BUT I-AHEM-AM NOT PLANNING ANY CHANGES IN PERSONNEL. DO YOUR WORK AND EVERYTHING WILL GO ON AS USUAL. PLAY BALL WITH ME — I'LL PLAY BALL WITH YOU! LET'S RAISE OUR SIGHTS AND FULL STEAM AHEAD! NOW LET ME SAY A WORD OR TWO ABOUT (HARRUMPH!) THE COFFEE BREAKS....
HE'S GIVIN' US THE EVIL EYE! OVER AT SHIFTLESS GEAR THEY CALLED HIM RAG MOP — HE CLEANED OUT THE JOINT BEFORE HIS SEAT WAS WARM...
ME — I'M TAKING TO THE LIFEBOATS NOW! I WAS THE FIRST ONE TO GET HEAVE-HOED WHEN HE TOOK OVER AT TARNISHED STEEL...
EVERYBODY'LL BE IN THE BREAD LINE EXCEPT THE TERMITES — THEY'RE HIS BLOOD RELATIONS....

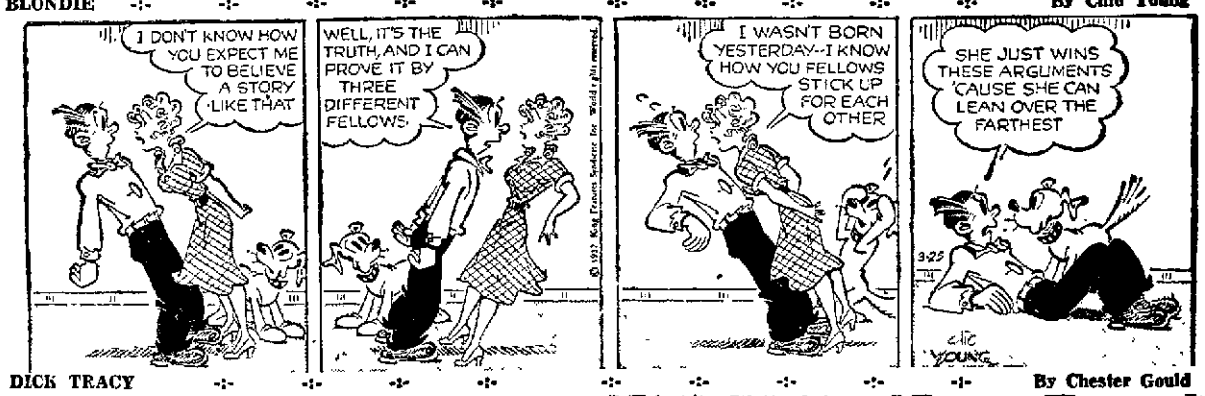
THE HEART OF JULIET JONES By Stan Drake

EVE? COME IN, PLEASE.
I'M ON MY WAY, MISS MELLET.
IS—IS SOMETHING THE MATTER WITH YOUR EYES, MISS MELLET?
NOTHING THAT SIX HOURS OF WEEPING WON'T DO. EVE—GRADY'S WALKED OUT OF MY AGENCY—AND MY LIFE!
OH—I'M SO SORRY—
IT WAS MY OWN FAULT—PLAYING GOD WITH A SENSITIVE HUNK OF MAN LIKE GRADY WORLOCK! I—I'LL BE O.K. AS SOON AS I FIND A HANKIE!

BLONDIE By Chic Young



I DON'T KNOW HOW YOU EXPECT ME TO BELIEVE A STORY LIKE THAT WELL, IT'S THE TRUTH, AND I CAN PROVE IT BY THREE DIFFERENT FELLOWS.
I WASN'T BORN YESTERDAY—I KNOW HOW YOU FELLOWS STICK UP FOR EACH OTHER
SHE JUST WINS THESE ARGUMENTS 'CAUSE SHE CAN LEAN OVER THE FARTHEST

GO BACK TO THE THEATER AND PRETEND NOTHING'S HAPPENED. WE'LL AWAIT TRACY'S ARRIVAL AT THE HELIPORT.
BROTHER! TO THINK WE'VE HAD THOSE BLOOD-THIRSTY DAMES REHEARSING WITH US!
IT'S A RENTAL CAR—A STATION WAGON. SPIKE AND HIS WIFE ALWAYS PARKED IT RIGHT IN THIS ALLEY.
I SEE IT.
THESE ARE THE WRONG KEYS! SHE MUST HAVE GIVEN YOU THE BUS KEY.
OH, THAT CUTE DAME! I'LL GO BACK THERE AND —

DO YOU REALLY THINK SOMEONE INTENDS TO EXTORT MONEY FROM MISS ROYCE, SIR?
IT'S POSSIBLE, DESMOND. SHE'S WEALTHY AND ALONE — A TEMPTING TARGET.
NOW TO HAVE A CLOSER LOOK AT THE NOTE — OH, OH, I DON'T LIKE THIS!
DON'T LIKE WHAT, SIR?
THE WAY THESE LETTERS WERE CUT OUT. NOTICE THE PECULIAR SCISSORS STROKES...

IT HAS TO BE A MECHANICAL PENCIL!
WHY??
I'M TAKING MECHANICAL DRAWING!

GASOLINE ALLEY By Frank King

Wait Corky. This letter that just came. It's from Mother. She asks if my cousin, Leroy, can visit us.
It's oke with me if it is with you, Hope.
He's rather bashful and I'm sure he won't be any trouble.
Just don't make it for too long.
He's probably going to look for a job.
Say a week or two, until he finds a place to live.

Speedy Peace Hoped for in British Strike

Million Men Leave Jobs in Demand for Increase in Wages

LONDON (AP)—Britain's booming aviation, automobile and heavy machine tool industries were hit by the full force of a million-man walkout today. But prospects of a speedy over-all industrial peace brightened.

Strikers were told by union bosses new talks might lead to a settlement of wage disputes.

The walkout in the factories is the first stage of a "snowball" strike patterned to involve three million workers in 4,300 plants by April 6 if a 10 per cent wage increase demand is not met. If it spreads that far it will paralyze plants turning out 40 per cent of Britain's exports.

Began Saturday

The stoppage began Saturday and involves workers known here as engineers. They range from unskilled workers operating light switches to craftsmen running complicated machinery. Since plants normally are closed over the weekend, the full effect on production was only felt today.

Labor Minister Iain Mcleod has appealed to employers in the industrial plants to meet with the unions.

The strike is being masterminded by the Confederation of Engineering and Shipbuilding Unions, which also has been running a strike of Britain's 200,000 shipbuilding workers for the past 11 days.

Could End Quickly

Confederation bosses met shipbuilding employers at the Ministry of Labor here, raising hopes that peace is in sight in that industry. Industrial sources say that if a settlement is reached in the shipyards, peace would probably follow in the industrial plants within a day or two.

Most observers felt that a compromise 5 per cent hike would be agreed on eventually. This was the amount granted last week to 370,000 workers on the state-run railroads who also had asked 10 per cent.

Also nearing the crisis stage, although not to the point of strikes yet, were wage talks involving more than 2,620,000 other British workers, including one million in the building trades, 700,000 coal miners, 450,000 municipal workers, 250,000 in cotton textile plants, 120,000 in railway shops and 100,000 dockers.

Swiss Official In Spy Probe Takes His Life

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Suspicion that he spied against Egypt for France is blamed for the suicide of Atty. Gen. Rene Dubois.

The government announced that the 48-year-old official killed himself Saturday night in his attic with his army pistol.

Dubois got involved in a police probe of espionage at the Egyptian Embassy here. The government emphasized that there was no suggestion he had spied against Switzerland. However, spying against any government is a criminal offense in this neutral country.

A long investigation, initiated in November during the Suez crisis, stemmed from complaints by the Egyptian Embassy that its telephone conversations apparently were being tapped. Federal Police Inspector Max Ulrich, who had access to wire tapping for counterespionage work, was grilled intensively.

The government said there was "some noteworthy evidence that the attorney general himself may have passed information not concerning Swiss affairs illegally to foreign quarters."

Parliament elected him attorney general in July 1955. He was a Social Democrat and received Socialist support in obtaining the post.

They were: P. E. Ferriman, 20, of 1033 Uncapher Ave., and J. C. Way, 24, of 876 E. Center St. Ferriman was picked up at 11:40 near the Marion County courthouse, while Way was apprehended at 11:30 p.m. on Carhart St.

Faces Driving Charge

E. F. Ketzel, 41, of 367 Uncapher Ave. was arrested Saturday night by state highway patrolmen on State Route 4 north of Marion and charged with driving while intoxicated. He is slated to appear in Municipal Court later on the charge.

Faces Juvenile Hearing

U.S. To Bolster British Defense

Ike To Push Atomic Aid To Full Extent of Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower intends to go as far as the law will allow in making atomic warheads for guided missiles accessible for British use in emergencies.

Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan reached a final "agreement in principle" during their talks at Bermuda that "certain guided missiles will be made available by the United States for use by British forces."

This was one of the major results of the conference. Eisenhower returned to Washington Sunday.

British Reportedly Behind

The British reportedly are behind the United States in the development of guided missiles and atomic explosives. They lack money for large development programs. In fact, they are now having to reduce their military manpower to save money.

Eisenhower assured Macmillan that the United States would help Britain reduce its forces and at the same time maintain a high level of firepower.

The conference communique did not say how the British are to get the atomic warheads for weapons they receive from the United States. U. S. law forbids the President to give or lend atomic explosives to any foreign government.

Plan Storage in Britain

The administration has decided however, to store atomic warheads in Britain under U. S. control. They could be quickly fitted on the missiles provided to the British.

Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles reportedly believe the President would have the power to turn warheads over to the British quickly in the event of atomic war.

Other accomplishments of the meeting which both sides considered highly successful, included:

1. A joint declaration that the United States and Britain would be willing to give to the United Nations advance notice of their nuclear tests and to allow both "limited international observation" if the Russians would do the same with their tests. The statement said the two must continue testing weapons so long as there is no broad disarmament agreement with Russia. They promised to test so as to minimize dangers of radioactive fall-out.

2. An agreement supporting United Nations resolutions covering U. N. responsibility for maintaining security in the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba, both in dispute between Israel and Egypt.

3. A declaration of support for the efforts of U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to negotiate a settlement of the Suez Canal argument with Egypt along lines which would assure some kind of international voice in the canal's operation.

4. A declaration of American willingness to join the military committee of the Baghdad Pact. This means in effect that the United States will work closely with Britain, Turkey, Iran, Iraq and Pakistan to shape the overall defense strategy for the Middle East.

Quake's Aftershocks Subside, California Returns to Normal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Life along the San Andreas Fault was returning to near normal today after Friday's earthquake.

By Sunday night there had been 120 aftershocks from the main temblor that rattled the San Francisco bay area.

Still blocked was Coast Highway No. 1, which hangs along the side of a Pacific Ocean cliff just south of San Francisco. Four quake-triggered landslides that covered the road are expected to be cleared by Wednesday.

Gov. Goodwin Knight said that was the only damage to the state highway system.

Gov. Knight said damage was generally minor but widespread and that there was as yet no overall estimate.

Hardest hit were Westlake and Westlake Palisades, brand new residential areas in Daly City near the ruined part of the highway.

John Doelger, vice president of the firm that developed both areas, said 200 of the 4,000 houses suffered damage but only 20 were damaged seriously.

Harold Stites, city manager of Daly City estimated between 500 and 1,000 houses were damaged.

As the aftershocks lessened, Dr. Don Tocher, University of California seismologist said he expected no more big shocks now.

The Rev. John S. Weber, seismologist at Santa Clara University, said Friday's quake probably relieved tensions along the fault and might stave off a big jolt for "several years."

In San Francisco, all public schools reopened today. Superintendent Harold Spears said the system found $50,000 damage.

The San Andreas Fault runs some 2,000 miles from off the Oregon coast to the Gulf of Baja California. It is probably the most active fault in the world and caused the 1906 earthquake that wrecked San Francisco.

Nurse's Story Given Jury in Doctor's Trial

LONDON (AP) — The jury trying Dr. John Bodkin Adams for murder was told today the rich old lady he is accused of drugging to death climbed out of bed in a restless mood four days before she died.

Mrs. Brenda Doreen Hughes, one of the nurses who cared for 81-year-old Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, testified as a star prosecution witness in the opening of the second week of the trial

But under cross - examination she described the elderly woman as an "aggressive" patient and agreed with the defense contention injections of narcotics were intended to quiet her. Earlier she told of Dr. Adams giving "special injections." She said she did not know their mixture.

Judge Sir Patrick Arthur Devlin asked the nurse whether Dr. Adams brought his own drugs with him or took them from a tray in the sickroom when prescribed medicine had been kept

"I know he did not get them from the tray," she replied.

Adams, 58 - year - old bachelor society doctor, is charged with drugging Mrs. Morrell to gain an inheritance under her will.

The prosecution has repeatedly called attention to "special injections" administered to the old lady — suggesting a mysterious concoction of narcotics.

The defense has insisted the injections were to enable her to sleep.

How to keep rising prices from robbing your pay envelope

—save an extra nickel from every dollar!

Every time prices go up—your real pay goes down. And there's no need for living costs to keep rising. We can do a great deal to stop inflation—simply by saving an extra nickel out of every dollar.

One of the main causes of rising prices is overspending. So the extra nickel each of us saves will put a strong brake on inflation.

For this will produce billions of dollars in savings—money which is urgently needed to finance more factories, homes and schools.

And, of course, you get a personal bonus from your extra savings—the feeling of independence and security that a growing nest egg brings . . . the feeling that your house is in order.

As a second step to fight inflation, all of us should support every reasonable move to reduce government spending—federal, state and local.

Sure, all this means a sacrifice. But isn't it worth it, if this means continuing our prosperity—and keeping it sound?
